MORRIS LEADS IN DECATHLON

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday. The swimming races, which began this morning at the Olympic swimming stadium, indicate that the battle for supremacy is again between America and Japan, and that great progress has been made during the past four years.

In the first heat of the 100 Metres free-style for men, Peter Wick (U.S.), the world record holder, reduced the Olympic record from 58 to 57.7 seconds, which, however, did not remain long, as it was broken down to 57.5 seconds by Taguchi (Japan) in the fifth heat.

From the seven elimination heats the following swimmers advanced to the semi-finals, which take place this afternoon: Flick, Highland and Lindgreen (U.S.), Yusa, Arai and Taguchi (Japan), Fischer and Helbel (Germany), Crik (Hungary), Adjaludin (Philippines), Christensen (Denmark), Abay-Nemes (Hungary), Kendall (Australia) and Hietanen (Finland).

KWANGSI CRISIS

BORDER DEFENCES STRENGTHENED

PAKHOI-REPORTED TO BE OCCUPIED

Shanghai, Yesterday. The ability of an early situation to fluctuate, and the real attitude of Generals Li Chung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi, according to Chinese despatches, remains a mystery. Some messages describe the outlook as gloomy, especially in view of the allegedly defiant attitude of the Kwangsi junior officers.

The Kwangsi border defences have been strengthened and heavy reinforcements have arrived at Wuchow. Kwangsi troops are stated to have occupied Pakhoi, the seaport near the Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, but confirmation is lacking.

Several newly-appointed officials of the Kwangtung Provincial Government left for Canton this morning on the French liner Commissaire. Mr. Hsu Chung-ching, Commissioner of Education, Mr. Wang Ying-yu, Commissioner of Civil Affairs, Mr. Yao Po-man, Director of the Canton Navigation Bureau, and Mr. Tsai Wu-chi, Director of the Shanghai Commodities Testing Bureau, who is reopening the Canton Bureau. — Reuter.

NANKING OPTIMISTIC
Nanking: An early solution of the Kwangsi situation is predicted in authoritative circles here, which state that Mr. Chu Cheng, President of the Judicial Yuan, is expected to Canton by air on Tuesday next. En route at Nanking, he will interview Generals Li Chung-jen and Pei Chung-hsi, who have already welcomed Mr. Chu Cheng's peace mission to Kwangsi. The National Government has appointed Mr. Lim Yun-kai Minister of War and Mr. Wu Chung-shan, Chairman of the Mongolian Affairs Commission. — Reuter.

SETTLEMENT SCHEMES IN CANADA

London, Yesterday.—The members of the organisations in the United Kingdom which have sought to secure the resumption of Empire migration have received invitations to attend a conference at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, from September 28 to 30, to discuss plans for re-starting family settlement in that Canadian province. — British Wireless Service.

Berlin, later: The outstanding ability of the Japanese swimmers was also proved in the elimination heats of the 200 Metres breast-stroke event for women, which took place this morning. Miss Maehata setting up a new Olympic record of 3 minutes 01.9 seconds in the third heat. Strong competition is foreseen between Japan and Germany for the places in this event.

Those qualifying for the semi-finals, which take place to-morrow, were Soerensen (Denmark), Isberg (Sweden), Wanberg (Lithuania), Gonerger (Germany), Kaslein (Holland), Tauboi (Japan), Maehata (Japan), Christensen (Denmark), Gower (Gt. Britain), Wellandlaeger (Germany), Storey (Britain), Lenk (Brazil), Hoelzner (Germany) and Lapaelainen (Finland).

WATER-POLO TOURNAMENT

In the first match in the Water-Polo tournament, played in the swimming stadium this morning, Belgium scored a victory over Uruguay by a goal to nil.

Both teams put up a very hard fight and for a long time it looked as if the result was going to be a tie, the Uruguay goalkeeper Kille parrying one shot after another in masterly manner, but finally the Belgian forward Koppelman managed to score the only goal of the game from close quarters.

TYPHOON HAVOC

90 FISHERMEN MISSING

JAPANESE DESTROYER TO THE RESCUE

Shanghai, Yesterday. Lifeboats from the Japanese destroyer Asagao are now proceeding to the scene and will tomorrow comb the coral reefs surrounding Tungsha Island, 180 miles south-east of Hong Kong, in a search for 90 Japanese and Chinese fishermen who disappeared in a terrific typhoon on August 1.

Out of one Chinese and 10 Japanese trawlers anchored off the island three were tossed ashore with no loss of life. Four Japanese trawlers foundered a few minutes after the typhoon broke, 21 persons being drowned. One Chinese and three Japanese trawlers were torn from their anchors and carried out to sea. Several members of the crews jumped overboard and battled their way to the shore. — Reuter.

The famous Champs Elysees in Paris was turned into a battleground for the Republic of France when 15,000 "Rightist" supporters registered an active protest against the government of the Premier, M. Leon Blum, last month. Six husky policemen are here seen persuading a demonstrator.

"National Policies Must Be Upheld"

ADVICE GIVEN HIROTA

General Terauchi Speaks Plainly

DR. BABA DEFENDING JAPAN'S FINANCIAL POSITION

Tokyo, Yesterday

The advice to ignore all the opposition to projected national policies was given to-day to the Premier, Mr. Koki Hirota, by General Count Terauchi, Minister of War, who emphasised the necessity.

Firstly, of the nationalisation of the electric power industry, which is meeting with a hostile reception from private interests;

Secondly, the extension of civil aviation, considered vital as an adjunct to military aviation;

Thirdly, the adoption of rigid control of shipping groups so as to eliminate wasteful competition.

General Terauchi previously conferred with Dr. Baba, Minister of Finance, who opposed the War Ministry's demand for a large issue of "red-link" bonds for the army's huge replenishment programme, saying that such a stop would block the Treasury's efforts to strengthen the financial position of the nation.

FEW DAYS WILL DECIDE

The differences between General Terauchi and Dr. Baba are expected to come to a head in a few days, when the Minister of Finance decides which of the Government Departments should receive first consideration in the preparation of next year's budget.

General Terauchi has consistently maintained that national defence should be given priority. He has been steadily increasing the amount which in his opinion is needed by the army for its six-year replenishment programme. Starting with 3,000,000,000 yen, he later doubled the amount, and has now increased it to 10,000,000,000 yen.

VANCOUVER'S JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

Civic Deputation From London

London, Yesterday.

The Lord Mayor of London Sir Percy Vincent, accompanied by Lady Vincent and a deputation from the Corporation of the City of London, left this morning on an official visit to Vancouver, British Columbia, to be present for the jubilee celebrations of that city. The party included the Sheriff, the Lord Mayor's Mace-Bearer, the Sword-Bearer and City Marshal. They are taking with them and will present to the city of Vancouver a mace which is almost an exact copy of the City of London mace. — British Wireless Service.

SUPPORTERS OF NANKING

CHINESE IN PERAK SHOW LOYALTY

Singapore, Yesterday.

Chinese residents of the Malay State of Perak have decided to present Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek with an aeroplane as a birthday gift. Subscriptions are now being collected.

Although many of them have never been in China the majority of the Chinese in Malaya are staunch supporters of the Nanking Government. They have frequently contributed money to patriotic causes. There are several Chinese millionaires in Malaya, even in terms of sterling. The Chinese dominate the retail and artisan trades throughout the peninsula. — Reuter.

CONTEST WINNERS

Mrs. J. D. Danby, of Lynx Hill, Wongneichong Gap, won the first prize in the "Heads" competition last Sunday, while Mrs. G. H. Osmund, of No. 29, Jordan Road, Top Floor, Kowloon, was the winner of the second prize.

"Such Ministers should be made to resign as part of the programme for administrative reform," — Reuter.

JAPAN FACING THE FUTURE

"Rapprochement" With Britain?

POSSIBLE RENEWAL OF ALLIANCE

London, Yesterday.

There have lately been several indications that Japan is thinking in terms of an Anglo-Japanese "rapprochement", says "The Times." Proud, defiant, perhaps a little light-headed, Japan faces the future, but faces it alone.

The outlook for Japan's foreign trade is far from bright. Manchukuo provides no haven for the surplus population. Russia is viewed with growing apprehension. Even if an armed conflict is avoided the ideological and economic clashes of these two Powers will leave important marks in the future in the Far East.

In the circumstances a renewal of some form of Anglo-Japanese alliance would be welcomed in Japan. In the Asahi's strictures on British commercial policy may be seen the background of Japanese decreasing foreign trade, the real motive for the desire for friendship. Britain would welcome friendship, provided the foundations include a genuine and not merely a nominal regard for the sovereign rights of China. — Reuter.

Ras Seyoum's Submission

Rome, Yesterday.—Ras Seyoum, one of the leading generals in the Abyssinian war, made official submission to the Italian Viceroy, Marshal Graziani, at Addis Ababa yesterday, the act taking place at the Government palace in the presence of Abyssinian dignitaries and representatives of the Catholic and Mohammedan religions.

In a short address Ras Seyoum expressed faith in the Italian ability to bring order to Abyssinia and restore peace among the tribes. The Viceroy thanked the speaker, expressing at the same time gratitude for the discipline of the populace during the recent attack on Addis Ababa. — Trans-Ocean Service.

MARXIST LEADER MURDERED

CHURCH PROPERTY TO BE CONFISCATED

MERIDA REPORTED CAPTURED BY NATIONALIST TROOPS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Gibraltar, Yesterday.

Algeciras, which is still in the hands of the insurgents, was subjected to three heavy bombardments yesterday by three cruisers, the Jaime I, the Libertad and the Cervantes, which first bombarded Ceuta on the other side of the Straits, on which the two larger vessels fired about 50 shells. The Jaime I then steamed towards Algeciras, taking up a position directly opposite the harbour and shelling the barracks, fort and the rebel gunboat Dato, which, after several shots, blew up and disappeared in flames.

The insurgents' batteries at Algeciras made a weak reply, only two shells falling in the sea near the warships. The bombardment could be clearly seen from the Rock of Gibraltar, where hundreds of Spaniards and Englishmen gathered to watch the exciting spectacle.

The Jaime I, supported by the cruiser Libertad, then proceeded to bombard the insurgent positions along the whole coast as far as Punta Carnero. Late at night they again shelled Algeciras, whose batteries this time were silent, having been put out of action by the previous bombardment. This morning the town was seen to have been badly damaged, many buildings still burning, while the quays were entirely destroyed.

Paris: The confiscation of the entire property of the church and religious orders has been ordered by a decree of the Catalan Government issued yesterday, according to a news agency report from Barcelona. The decree further authorises the confiscation of the property of persons convicted of supporting the insurgents.

MERIDA CAPTURED
Hendaye: A broadcast message from Seville affirms that the Nationalist troops have captured the town of Merida, which is described as the key position to the province of Badajoz.

From Burgos a radio message states that the President of the Marxist labour syndicates in Barcelona has been murdered in that city by the adherents of the anarchist syndicates.

It is stated in the same message that much importance is attached in Government circles in Burgos to the decision taken by the Bishops of Pamplona and Vittoria, to address a pastoral letter to their respective flocks, calling upon them to co-operate, irrespective of their political views, in the defence of the religion of the fatherland.

LIKELY SEQUEL
It is believed, so the message states, that the bishops' action will exert a considerable influence on the Basque Nationalists who have hitherto supported the Marxists. (Continued on Page 17.)

NEUTRALITY ISSUE

French Cabinet Holds Long Session

GERMAN ASSURANCES

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Paris, Yesterday. The unusual length of the Cabinet's deliberations to-day, which lasted about 3½ hours, is ascribed by some of the papers to certain divergencies of opinion between the Radical and Socialist Ministers concerning the attitude to be adopted by France in the Spanish civil war.

According to the Echo de Paris, the Radical-Socialists, headed by the Foreign Minister, M. Delbos, were in favour of strict neutrality, while the Socialists advocated a different policy.

The paper asserts that the Radical-Socialists' point of view finally prevailed, and the Cabinet, by a large majority, decided to maintain the neutrality of France.

SMALLER STATES INCLUDED
Paris: The French neutrality proposals in regard to the events in Spain have been communicated, according to political circles here, not only to the great Powers, but also to a number of States in which the industries concerning war materials have attained a high standard of development, such as Czechoslovakia. ECHO OF AIR LINER ACCIDENT

London, Yesterday.—The Consul at Cherbourg reports that a seaplane float and three bodies, assumed to be from the wreck of the Cloud of Iona, have been washed up at Annerville between Granville and Carperot, on the French coast. — British Wireless Service.

Promise Perfection

By ADELPHI CATBAU

"READY, EIT?" Bill Sheridan flung the question over his shoulder, not pausing in his nervous pacing of the narrow room. His topcoat was tossed on a chair, he held his hat in his hand.

Ellen nodded. "Just as soon as I put these few things in my bag."

"I'll carry it down and see about the car." He was anxious to be off; one would think it was his vacation. She supposed it was foolish to linger like this, absurdly, vainly, wishing...

She looked around the little bedroom; her eyes went beyond and searched out familiar objects in the living room. She knew where every chair, every lamp, every book was.

This was where she and Bill had come when they married. They had stood in the doorway and surveyed their domain as if it were as vast as a continent. How proud they had been of their few possessions, how sure they had been that this was to be only the beginning!

"One of these days, Mrs. Sheridan, you'll have a battery of refrigerators to take care of your caviar and squabs, and a special vault will be built in your boudoir for your emerald necklaces."

"But I don't want squabs and emerald necklaces, Bill darling." "Not even if I give them to you?" "Well, of course," she had begun reluctantly, and he had kissed her and laughed.

Such fun, such days of planning! What had happened to them? Why had it changed? Bill getting nervous and morose, himself ready to weep, to fly out about nothing. Something had gone terribly, terribly wrong. Was it herself, or Bill?

She was going to find out. And this might be the beginning of the end. For if she discovered the answer—up there in the quiet hills of Connecticut—she would not be coming back. She must look around the little apartment, so that she could remember every line and dimension of it.

Here were her window boxes, the geraniums and phlox striving bravely in the sunlight. Here was where she had sewed on frilly aprons—looking out across the cement and stone-walled street and dreaming. Here was where Bill had sat smoking... here on the tiny sink he had worked for so many evenings to make the little set of doll furniture for his niece.

Oh, this was impossible! She slipped through the door, winking rapidly. The latch clicked decisively, as if it were, saying, "It's all back of you now—the happy days, and the unhappy ones."

Was she glad or sorry? She couldn't tell. Bill was waiting for her beside the car. He helped her in, his face a mask. He did not speak while he manoeuvred through the uptown traffic. She sat beside him, feeling shrunken and miserable, clasping her gloved hands in her lap until her fingers ached.

What was Bill feeling? She could not tell, glancing at him. His face was set; he kept looking straight ahead.

Little by little, as they left the city behind them and began winding through the hills, she found her face relaxing, and her hands unclenched. It was restful—the rolling green hills dimming to blue against the horizon, the smell of new-mown grass, the cattle grazing in the fields, the occasional sound of water.

He asked her if she wanted to stay in the next village for lunch. "Oh, no," she told Mrs. Biddle. "I'd be there in time for lunch, and meals are included, you know!" She said it lightly; he mustn't think she didn't want to have lunch with him. But she didn't. Somehow, she couldn't bear to sit across from that glum, reproachful face, that set mouth of his.

He drove on; the silence was deeper. The silence between them pressed on her like a weight; the silence around her was a balm. If only they were setting out together it wouldn't matter that he didn't speak. But they weren't setting out together. He was taking her to the cross-roads and leaving her.

Mrs. Biddle came out to meet them. She was a motherly looking woman with tightly drawn back gray hair and a print dress with an apron tied over it. She beamed at them.

"Too bad your husband ain't staying," she clucked. "But I'll take good care of her. I'm right glad to have a young person in the house. Maybe I'll plump her up a bit—she could stand plumpin'! Unless you like 'em thin?"

Bill said, "I like her the way she is." He did it very well. Apparently Mrs. Biddle found nothing wrong with his way of saying it.

"Goodbye, Bill," Ellen said. Her throat felt dry and she held out her hand.

With Mrs. Biddle's eyes on them, Bill took her in his arms and kissed her. "Goodbye," he said in a muffled voice. "You'll write!" It was what a husband ought to say to a wife. But they knew what it meant, its real significance.

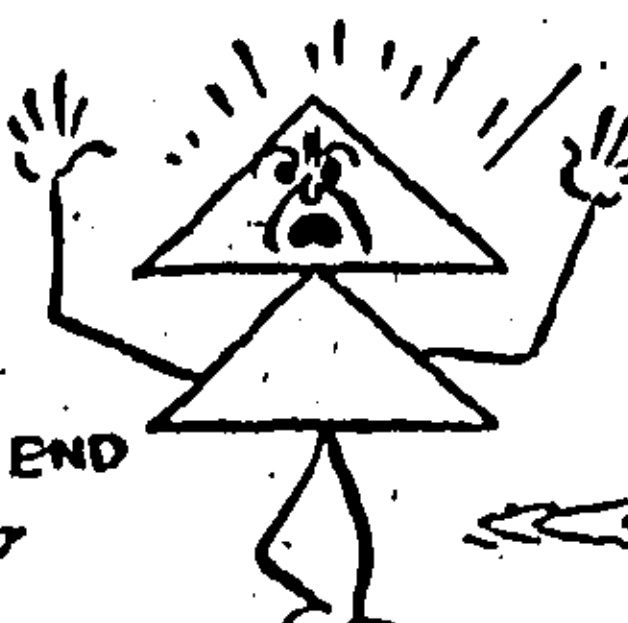

She nodded, afraid to speak for a moment "I'll write—as soon as I know."

"All right," he said brusquely. "I'll come up when you say."

After lunch she got up and announced that she was going for a walk. "When you come back, I'll have a cup of tea for you," promised Mrs. Biddle.

There seemed to be only one way to start out—along the road in front of the house. The street was shaded and there was a breeze blowing. Everything was peaceful and drowsy and sweet-smelling. As she walked, she tried to think. But there was something distracting in the air—or perhaps it was

QUICK ACTION with SAFETY is the KEYNOTE of 'ASPRO'

WHEN Headaches — Pain — High Temperatures, and numerous conditions of ill-health appear you want RELIEF, and Quick Relief, to get back to normal. This is where the use of 'ASPRO' is so valuable. It acts quickly and safely. Quickly because you get rapid relief—safely because it is pure and conforms to the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the Medical Profession. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' relieves the numerous complaints listed below, because, after ingestion in the system, it is a powerful germicide, and is anti-pyretic—anti-periodic and anti-fermentative. Always keep 'ASPRO' in the Home ready for emergency. 'ASPRO' DOES NOT HARM THE HEART.

'ASPRO' for Headaches and Neuritis

167 Union Street, Erskineville, N.S.W.
Sirs, I am an obstetric nurse, and my profession takes me on numerous journeys, which mean long hours in all kinds of weather, and at times I have felt that I could not carry on, but thanks to the wonderful 'ASPRO' Tablets—which I am never without—I have had instant relief from Headaches and Neuritis.
I have nursed four generations, and have always advised my patients to try 'ASPRO' Tablets for complaints too numerous to mention, and all have been loud in their praise for the wonders which 'ASPRO' has done for them.
You may wish to see for yourself the relief which I had from 'ASPRO'.
Yours truly,
MRS. E. E. ELDON

Nerves were in a Terrible Way — 'ASPRO' a Surprise

1 Garden Street, Middle Brighton, S.S.
15/12/32
Dear Sirs,
Last week I had 18 teeth out, and not being well my nerves were in a terrible way; in fact, I had to be taken home from the dentist. I went on for a couple of days in terrible pain with my head and eyes, due to my nerves, so I had to go to a doctor. On my way home I bought a packet of 'ASPRO'. I took three and laid down, and to my surprise I woke up feeling lovely. Now, if I feel a slight headache at all I fly to my 'ASPRO'. I think 'ASPRO' should be in every home. I could mention a few more facts, where 'ASPRO' has done good in my home. Once tried, always used.
Yours faithfully,

OUR NEW YORK LETTER GIRLS WEAR TROUSERS

BOYISH STYLES ENHANCE FEMININE
CHARMS — LELONG'S DINNER SUIT OF BROADCLOTH

TRIED of frills and furbelows? Try tailor-made chic for a change. On a hot summer night it's as snappy as an Arctic breeze. Boyish lines that enhance feminine charms are the smoothest things for gay August evenings. When wearing T-square lines of masculine severity let your fancy go when it comes to jewels. Put on trousers and hang several strands of pearls around your neck, or a mess jacket and let diamonds gleam on your wrist.

Here is the story: A young American designer, thinking of what women would like most to dance in at country or beach club, hit upon the idea of trouser suits. They are as fresh and cool looking as an icicle, for they are of the much-vaunted silk alpaca in snowy white. They are cut so that not one curve of waist or hips is lost, or distorted. The trousers are pressed with precision; the shoulders have that lota of exaggeration which narrows the figure from the arm pits down.

Withal the trouser style is feminine. One of the suits has a halterneck bodice, finished at the front with a tiny collar, but leaving the back entirely bare; another has a top of a brightly dotted silk kerchief, and a third is made with a bodice that is shirred between the bosoms, a tiny slit below revealing a tantalizing glimpse of white skin.

The jacket is black lined, the belt putonia-pink. So might Circe dress, if she were to put in appearance at a smart club in the summer of 1936!

For Town Wear

Girls who are dancing in town, and can't very well appear in the casual garb just described, may have the same tailored chic when wearing skirts. Evening ensembles in pique, lace, organdie, silk alpaca, have the concise silhouette of a man's evening clothes.

It took Lelong to design a real dinner suit for women, and it's a "honey." He did it in black broadcloth, put stripes down the side of the skirt and faced the lapels of the jacket with silk. Masculine? Yes, in idea, but only the most feminine of girls will dare to wear it. With this suit—a knee-length broadcloth cape, can be worn—the old boulevardier type. This is a fine outfit for the woman who is tripping off to foreign spots, where she will dine in smart restaurants. And it will be grand for early Autumn.

Helm squares his lines in a suit of an entirely different type and makes it of white silk alpaca. To maintain its simplicity he accentuates its straight lines with inverted pin tucks, and then with a delightfully frivolous touch puts a peasant bodice under the short square jacket and embroiders the front with sprigs of flowers. These are worked in floss and beads.

The names of the winners of the "Heads" competition will be found on Page 1.

WHY WOMEN WEAR STOCKINGS

THE French, ever arbiters of fashion, are said to have invented the stocking, but it will probably shock the modern Miss to learn that the first stockings were of leather. These possessed, however, the advantage of being ladder-proof.

As dress became more decorative fabrics came into use for stockings, which were made of velvet decorated with gold embroidery, or cloth, or silk. They were not hose, but were cut to the shape of the leg and sewn together. According to a writer of the 12th century, the nobles of that period "bandaged their legs," which gives a hint that a form of puttee was also worn.

Chaucer makes many references to the wearing of stockings, and in one passage he informs us that the women wore "staitte y-tayed stockings." In more fashionable circles blue and white and red and white were the most popular colour combinations, suggesting that there was no need then for a "brighter dress" movement.

Expensive Fashion

A London apprentice named William Ryder is said to have made the first knitted worsted stockings, about the middle of the 14th century. Queen Elizabeth, who was responsible for the introduction of many innovations in dress, was so delighted with a pair of silk knitted hose, received as a gift, that she wore nothing but stockings of the finest silk from that time.

On this occasion, however, the Queen's choice could not be followed by the country at large, as silk stockings were made in Italy, and remained very expensive for a long time. It was not until nearly a hundred years later that the courtiers and leaders of fashion sported the shimmering silk.

The protective leather stocking of the ancients may not have been a thing of beauty, but leather is not so far a cry from wood-pulp, which is the main ingredient of the artificial silk stocking of to-day.

little tricks.

IF you are unfortunate enough to get a "black eye," don't apply cold water. Use very hot water, and the pain will go, and the colour disappear more quickly.

TO ease a burn, apply flour mixed with cold water. It gives instant relief, and may be used frequently.

TO remove ink and other stains under the nails, use an orange stick wrapped in cotton-wool, which has been soaked in lemon juice.

TO remove discolorations from the neck, dab on strained lemon juice and allow to dry into the skin. The discolorations may be caused by the after-effects of sunburn in summer or the constant wearing of a fur-collared coat in winter.

... It's all in knowing how!

THE PERFECT FACE

(By MAX FACTOR)

THE face which displays absolute flawless perfection of features has been forever sought by poets, painters and picture producers. But, alas, without success. It just doesn't seem to exist.

There are a number of pairs of perfect eyes in Hollywood. There are even several mouths and noses which might be labelled "perfect." But the possessors of these individually perfect points do not maintain this high standard in their other facial features.

Perhaps it's just as well. The perfection of a fine marble statue is somehow cold, even at its best. It is my belief that facial charm gains character from its slight imperfections.

Of course we continually strive to attain a degree of perfection by the clever use of make-up. Results are surprisingly good, too. But the actually perfect face seems out of reach.

There are enough individually perfect features scattered throughout Hollywood's boy of beauties to make one or more perfect faces. With a little imagination we can synthetically reconstruct one.

Dolores Del Rio's mouth would be an ideal start. It is soft, expressive and exquisitely formed. Dolores is a true artist in applying her lipstick. By drying her lips thoroughly and blending the lipstick with her fingertip she assures that soft, perfectly modelled effect.

For perfect teeth we choose those of Anita Louise. They are straight, sound, small and milky-white. Care of the teeth should be an important part of any girl's beauty routine.

A perfect chin is not easy to find. Binnie Barnes wins this award with the firm, graceful curve of her jawbone and chin line. No rouge is needed here to camouflage sharp corners or sagging muscles.

Cheeks form probably the most important contours of the face. Those of Bette Davis meet our demands for perfection. They are ideally sized and placed and require only the faintest dab of rouge. By carefully using rouge as a shadow, we can make many cheeks approach the standards of perfection.

The long, flowing sweep of Carole Lombard's forehead gives distinction to our synthetic ideal beauty. Its smooth, unruffled skin shows that it receives the proper attention with cleansing creams, lotions and such.

In all Hollywood it is difficult to find a more perfect nose than that of Tala Birell. Its classic modelling and clear-cut lines defy equal. No rouging tricks are needed to give the nose the appearance of narrowness or straightness.

The perfect head is beginning to take form. When we place it on the shapely neck of Helen Gahagan the result is superb. The creamy smoothness and slender grace of this famous throat make it a perfect pillar. Massage and skin care show results.

In this magnificent setting we place the gem-like eyes of Frances Drake. Fringed with dark lashes, they are large, clear and full of expression. Again attention is evident. We can do much to accentuate eyes which are less exciting. The deft use of a bit of eyeshadow, some eyelash make-up and an eyebrow-pencil seems to work wonders.

A perfect crown for our perfect beauty would be Evelyn Venable's gorgeous hair. These dark, wavy tresses seem to hold a million tiny jewel-like lights.

There it stands, the perfect face—sketched in our imagination. As we have already said, there are other possessors of perfect features in Hollywood. There are also countless features which can be made to look perfect by the clever use of make-up.

... It's all in knowing how!

POINTS AT VALLEY

H. H. ROSE AGAIN BEATEN

THE Kowloon Bowling Green Club and Club de Recreio lost what little chance they had of overhauling the champions in the premier lawn bowls League when they both lost yesterday.
Recreio, very unexpectedly, succumbing to the K.C.C., for whom
A. E. Silketone was in great form.

Recreio juniors were in brilliant fettle, however, recording the season's highest win when they beat the K.C.C. juniors by 64 shots, all their skips topping the 30 mark!

R. Duncan retained the leadership of the senior skips' table, but H. H. Rose suffered his second successive defeat in the junior division and only a better shots average gives him pride of place above G. E. F. Thompson, also of the K.B.G.C. Led 20-15 at the 20th end, Rose went down to E. J. Edwards by 20-18.

A seven was chalked up by W. K. Way, who beat L. Guy by 9 shots, while sixes were recorded by F. X. Soares (up 24 shots),
C. H. Basto (up 19), A. F. Paul (up 17) and A. R. Minu (up 10).

INTERESTING WEEK
OF BOWLSOpen Singles Final
Next FridayTUESDAY'S OPEN PAIRS
SEMI-FINAL

Weather permitting, there is a very interesting week of Lawn
Bowls ahead, and next Friday will see the completion of the Colony
Open Singles Championship, when
A. E. Coates (Craigengower)
meets L. A. Gutierrez (Club de Recreio) on the Kowloon Bowling
Green Club's green.

On Tuesday S. A. Bright and J.
E. Henson (K.B.G.C.) will meet
J. E. Noronha and F. X. M. da Silva
(Recreio) in their Semi-Final Round encounter in the Open Pairs
Championship and the latter pair should experience little difficulty in entering the Final Round, where they will probably meet R. Duncan, one of last year's finalists, and his partner S. Randle.

The following is the programme:
SINGLES FINAL

(Friday, Aug. 14)

A. E. Coates v L. A. Gutierrez at

TEST TEAM PLAYERS IN GOOD FORM

Hardstaff And Leyland
Score Centuries

SIX WICKETS FOR VERITY

London, Yesterday.
The mid-week cricket programme was featured by the number of games played to a finish, no less than five matches being brought to a definite conclusion. Two of the matches were decided on the first innings, while the Warwick v. All India encounter, at Birmingham, was left drawn.

Hardstaff, one of the players already invited for the Australian tour, was in fine form with the bat when Notts met Leicester and claimed first innings points, Hardstaff's contribution being 112. Leyland (113) and Verity (6 for 46) were other Test players to shine.

Results, as cabled by Reuter, were as follows:—
At the Oval, Derby took first innings points from Surrey. Surrey: 204 (Mitchell 5 for 88) and 315 for 7 (Barling 102). Derby: 321 (Smith 100).

At Leicester, Notts took first innings points from Leicester. Notts: 309 (Hardstaff 112; Astill 5 for 57). Leicester: 219 (Woodhead 6 for 49).

The match between Warwick and All-India, at Birmingham, was left drawn. Warwick: 181 (Emir Elahi 5 for 48) and 219 for 3 dec. All-India: 249 (Dilawar Hussain 101 not out) and 54 for 3.

At Weston-super-Mare, Somerset beat Glamorgan by 8 wickets. Glamorgan: 207 and 100 (Andrews 6 for 22). Somerset: 193 and 122 for 2 wickets.

At Bristol, Middlesex beat the Gloucestershire side by 9 wickets. Middlesex: 410 (Webster 111, Hendren 127) and 19 for 1. Gloucestershire: 164 (Sims 5 for 60) and 273 (Smith 6 for 82).

At Canterbury, Lancashire beat Kent by 5 wickets. Kent: 276 and 107 for 7 dec. (B. H. Valentine 102 not out). Lancashire: 232 (Iddon 132 not out) and 241 for 5.

At Leeds, Worcestershire were defeated by Yorkshire by an innings and 215 runs. Yorkshire: 384 (Leyland 113). Worcestershire: 94 (Verity 6 for 48) and 75 (Smailes 7 for 24).

EARLIER RESULT

At Hastings, Sussex beat Hampshire by an innings and 86 runs. Sussex: 323 (Harry Parks 107 not out). Hampshire: 91 (Tate 7 for 19) and 140.

THIS WEEK'S LEAGUE TENNIS TIES

Mixed Doubles Games
To-morrow

"A" DIVISION MATCHES IN ROTATION

Owing to interference by rain, the League Lawn Tennis programme has undergone several changes and to-morrow the Mixed Doubles League will continue with two matches, between the holders, the C.R.C., and Club de Recreio, at Causeway Bay, and between the K.C.C. "A" and "B" teams, at King's Park.

The Chinese are easily the strongest team in this division this season and should win their game comfortably, while the "A" team should perform similarly in the K.C.C. encounter.

On Tuesday the "A" Division will continue with the four matches postponed from July 7, these being originally postponed owing to rain.

The following are to-morrow's and this week's fixtures:—

MIXED DOUBLES LEAGUE

TO-DAY'S BASEBALL ENCOUNTER

Overseas Chinese To Meet Japanese

CLOSE STRUGGLE ANTICIPATED

A close and exciting League Baseball game is anticipated this morning at Causeway Bay, where the Overseas Chinese meet the Japanese. Young Men's Association.

This game will have a great bearing on the final position of the teams in the League, as a win for the Japanese will again place them in the running for honours, while a win for the Chinese will place them in a very favourable position for the title.

The Chinese will probably be using L. Chang as pitcher, with A. Fong, as catcher, while W. Ching will hold the short-stop position. The rest of the team will be the same as that which played yesterday.

No Changes

The Japanese, who have not played in a League game for some time, are retaining the same line-up which just beat the Americans in their last game.

Mikuni will be pitching, with Yasuda catching. Koga will cover first base, while Takeda will be at third base. Yajima, who played well at short-stop in the last game, will be retained in that position.

The following are the teams:—
Japanese Y.M.A.:—Yasuda (c), Mikuni (p), Koga (1st b.), Kawamura (2nd b.), Takeda (3rd b.), Yajima (s.s.), Amasaka (l.f.), Yamasaka (c.f.) and Nakamoto (r.f.).

Overseas Chinese:—Fong (c), L. Chang (p.), L. Ching (1st b.), B. S. Ching (2nd b.), W. Ching (s.s.), P. Chang (3rd b.), Chan (l.f.), C. S. Chung (c.f.) and K. Chung (r.f.).

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMMES FOR "Y" GALAS

Team Selected For The Quadrangular Meet

NEXT WEDNESDAY NIGHT'S EVENTS NOMINATED

At a meeting of the European Y.M.C.A. Swimming Committee, held on Friday night, an attractive programme was drawn up for next Wednesday night's gala, a feature of which will be longer races.

The Novices' race, which has hitherto being swum over 25 yards, has been increased to 50 yards, while a 100 Yards free-style handicap event will be the main feature of the evening.

In addition to the three ladies' events, there will also be the Men's 50 Yards Aggregate Handicap, 50 Yards back-stroke handicap, a Mixed Relay and a Mixed Novelty race, the gala being brought to a conclusion by a flannel dance in the West Lounge.

Quadrangular Gala

On Wednesday, August 26, the European "Y" will play hosts to the Mak Ngeh Association, of Canton, the Royal Engineers and the East Lancashire Regiment in a quadrangular gala in which will be featured a series of interesting straight races, while an invitation 100 Yards free-style event will provide the titbit of the evening.

The following are the events for August 26, with the European Y.M.C.A. representatives in brackets:

50 Yards back-stroke (F. J. Anslow)
50 Yards free-style (R. Goldman)
220 Yards free-style (H. G. Lange)
100 Yards invitation free-style (No representative).
175 Yards Medley Relay—50 yards back-stroke (N. Booker), 50 yards breast-stroke (J. Lephard), 25 yards under-water (H. Millington), 50 yards free-style (H. Arnold).
Diving—E. Fowler.
Water-Polo:—East Lanes. v. Mak Ngeh Assoc.; Royal Engineers v. Y.M.C.A.

ARMY SWIMMING SPORTS

R.E. And R.W.F. Heats
To-morrow

The Royal Engineers are holding their annual aquatic championships in the V.R.C. Swimming pool to-morrow, commencing at 2.30 p.m., when the preliminary heats will be swum off.

The finals will be swum off on Tuesday evening commencing at 7.30 p.m., when the main feature will be the invitation relay open to Army units. Heats for this event will be held the same evening.

The heats for the Royal Welch Fusiliers annual swimming sports will be held in the European Y.M.C.A. swimming pool to-morrow afternoon commencing at 2.30 p.m., while their half-mile championship will be decided at Sharnhuip on Tuesday afternoon.

TO-NIGHT'S WATER POLO GAME

C.A.A. And East Lanes.
At North Point

An interesting water-polo match will take place this evening at the Chinese Athletic Association's Bathing Pavilion at North Point, where the Chinese club will meet the East Lancashire Regiment's Battalion water-polo team.

The Chinese will be fielding a very strong team which will be selected from the following:—Ng Kam-chuen, Mui Chi-cheong, Wong Sun-man, Kwok Chun-hang, Lam Yau-ting, Pun Ting-man, Chi Chouk-yau, Chan Shek-pui, Lo Wai-kin, Yeung Man-kit, Tsui Wong-ki and Shek Kam-pui.

What Is Next In The Air? England To New York In 24 Hours Freighters Without Pilots Travelling On A Beam

(By CAPT. H. S. BROAD, A.F.C.)

It took the naval architect some 2,000 years to progress from the coracle to the Queen Mary. The aircraft designer has done almost as much, relatively speaking. In the thirty years since Wright made the first controlled mechanical flight. Certainly he has gone so far that men and women who were already grown up when Wright first left the ground can confidently expect to cross the Atlantic in luxury liners of the air before they die.

Non-flying people often ask me, "What's the next big development in the air?" For some time past I have replied "The next thing is that you will do all your long-distance travelling by air—and think nothing of it."

Simplified Engine

This stage is much nearer than most people think. After more than twenty years' flying, I am a cautious prophet, but I do not hesitate to say that the next ten years will see a real revolution in long-distance travel. The huge luxury air-liner is often spoken of as the thing to be looked for "some day, perhaps when we're all dead." That is sheer nonsense: the truth is that we are on the very threshold of that development today.

Within a very few years all first-class sea-borne traffic—that is, passengers and mails—in which the time factor is important, will have taken to the air. A sweeping statement, but let me give chapter and verse.

In the main, this will be done with big Diesel-engined flying boats. This type of engine is yet in its infancy. Owing to its low fuel consumption, it is ideal for non-stop distances of a thousand miles or more. Its utter simplicity (to all intents and purposes absence of delicate electric components ensure complete reliability—a feature nervous passengers will demand before trusting themselves over thousands of miles of ocean. A few years' development at an ordinary rate of progress day will have brought the Diesel power unit to the same amazing pitch of efficiency already reached by the petrol engine.

Do not for a moment imagine 70,000-ton flying boats. There is no need for them, and probably never will be. 200-ton Flying Boats. On the other hand, we already have in England a 6-engined boat of 70,000 lbs. displacement, and the designers are discussing details of boats displacing 200 tons or more. These latter will certainly be an accomplished fact in a few years at the most, and are big enough to bear out my prophecy.

Four Trips To One

Think what this means...I have made ample allowance for luxurious bunks for those who want to sleep. There will be up-to-date kitchens and adequate staff, plenty of room for passengers to stretch their legs and a good margin left after allowing the usual 200 lbs., or even more, for each passenger and his luggage. On a journey of this duration you could scarcely ask for swimming baths, ballrooms or extensive promenade decks, and no doubt wireless programmes will supply entertainment to satisfy every whim. But you certainly will get a degree of comfort far in advance of any railway train yet constructed.

The cost? Definitely no higher than first-class steamer fare to-day; probably less. Even now, it is cheaper to go from London to Berlin by air than to take a first-class train and boat ticket, and slightly cheaper from London to Jersey, which trip, incidentally, occupies only 90 minutes instead of nine hours.

Capital cost will be definitely less. I believe the cost of the Queen Mary worked out at something like £4,000 per passenger seat. The big flying boats will never approach such a figure. The pay-roll per trip will be far lower, and the flying boat will do four trips at least to the ocean liner's one.

Flying Blind

At this point the layman usually interjects: "Ah, but you're still dependent on the weather." This is only true to-day inasmuch as we have not made full use of all the bad-weather aids to flying which have already been proved up to the hilt.

We know all about blind flying and, although you still read about a few—very few—irresponsible persons losing their way and crashing in bad weather, believe me, there is not the slightest excuse for their doing so.

Not long ago the inauguration of a new route to Sweden embraced 175 miles of blind flying. Blind landings are regularly carried out in Germany, not as an experiment, but as a piece of perfectly safe routine work. Aerodromes in England are being equipped for the same practice. With a flying boat the manoeuvre becomes easier still, since the pilot has not to worry about fences, buildings or other obstacles.

Air liners are being equipped with a special apparatus to combat ice formation on the wings; with automatic pilots and many another gadget to make flying safe for the ordinary passenger. And the big shipping companies are beginning to invest their money in aircraft ventures, which plainly shows what they think.

Freight And Mails

Do not accuse me of lack of imagination when I say frankly that I can't foresee a time when the plane will be as common as the motor-car, or will replace it. But a far more sensational development is in prospect. To-morrow's freight and mails may soon be transported in a manner which sounds fantastic to the uninitiated.

Mark the logical sequence. There is no serious doubt that before long we shall have special freight machines which, too heavily laden to take off from ordinary aerodromes, will be catapulted into the air, set on their course by wireless control, and then flown down a wireless beam to their destination, thousands of miles away.

There will be no risk to life, and the machines will be unable to deviate from their true course. The saving in money will be tremendous. Reliability will be practically 100 per cent, for weather (Continued on Page 9)

Wise and Otherwise.

A fellow has to be a contortionist to get by these days. First he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, day.

This machine age hasn't robbed us of exercise. There is still the job of removing cellophane.

HONG KONG NOT MODERN CITY WITH PRESENT SLUM AREAS

Action Has Been Delayed Long Enough

ALARMING DEATH ROLL DUE TO OVERCROWDING

SCHEME FOR IMPROVEMENT WOULD REDUCE UNEMPLOYMENT

APPEAL TO CHINESE PUBLIC MEN TO TAKE FIRST STEP IN COLONY'S MOST PRESSING PROBLEM

ALTHOUGH it cannot be denied that Hong Kong has made much progress during the past decade or two, there are still many daily reminders that we in Hong Kong have not been as alert and alive to the needs of the poorer class as we might have been, and in this connection it would perhaps be interesting to mention that in this very modern city there are some slum areas which are a standing disgrace to the good name of any self-respecting town.

Not that this subject is a new one. It has, indeed, been brought up for discussion time and time again, but each time the matter has been tactfully relegated to the background in favour of some "more pressing needs," with the promise that the matter would receive attention when the time to deal with it arrived.

It will perhaps be generally agreed that there is obviously no more pressing need at the moment than the clearing of the slum areas, and there are quite a few of them. Not even the claims of tent-holders and the question of agriculture in the New Territories can demand more attention. Official support may or may not be coming, but we feel that if a body of public-spirited men got together and decided to bring the scheme through, come what may, sympathy from the right quarters will be forthcoming soon enough.

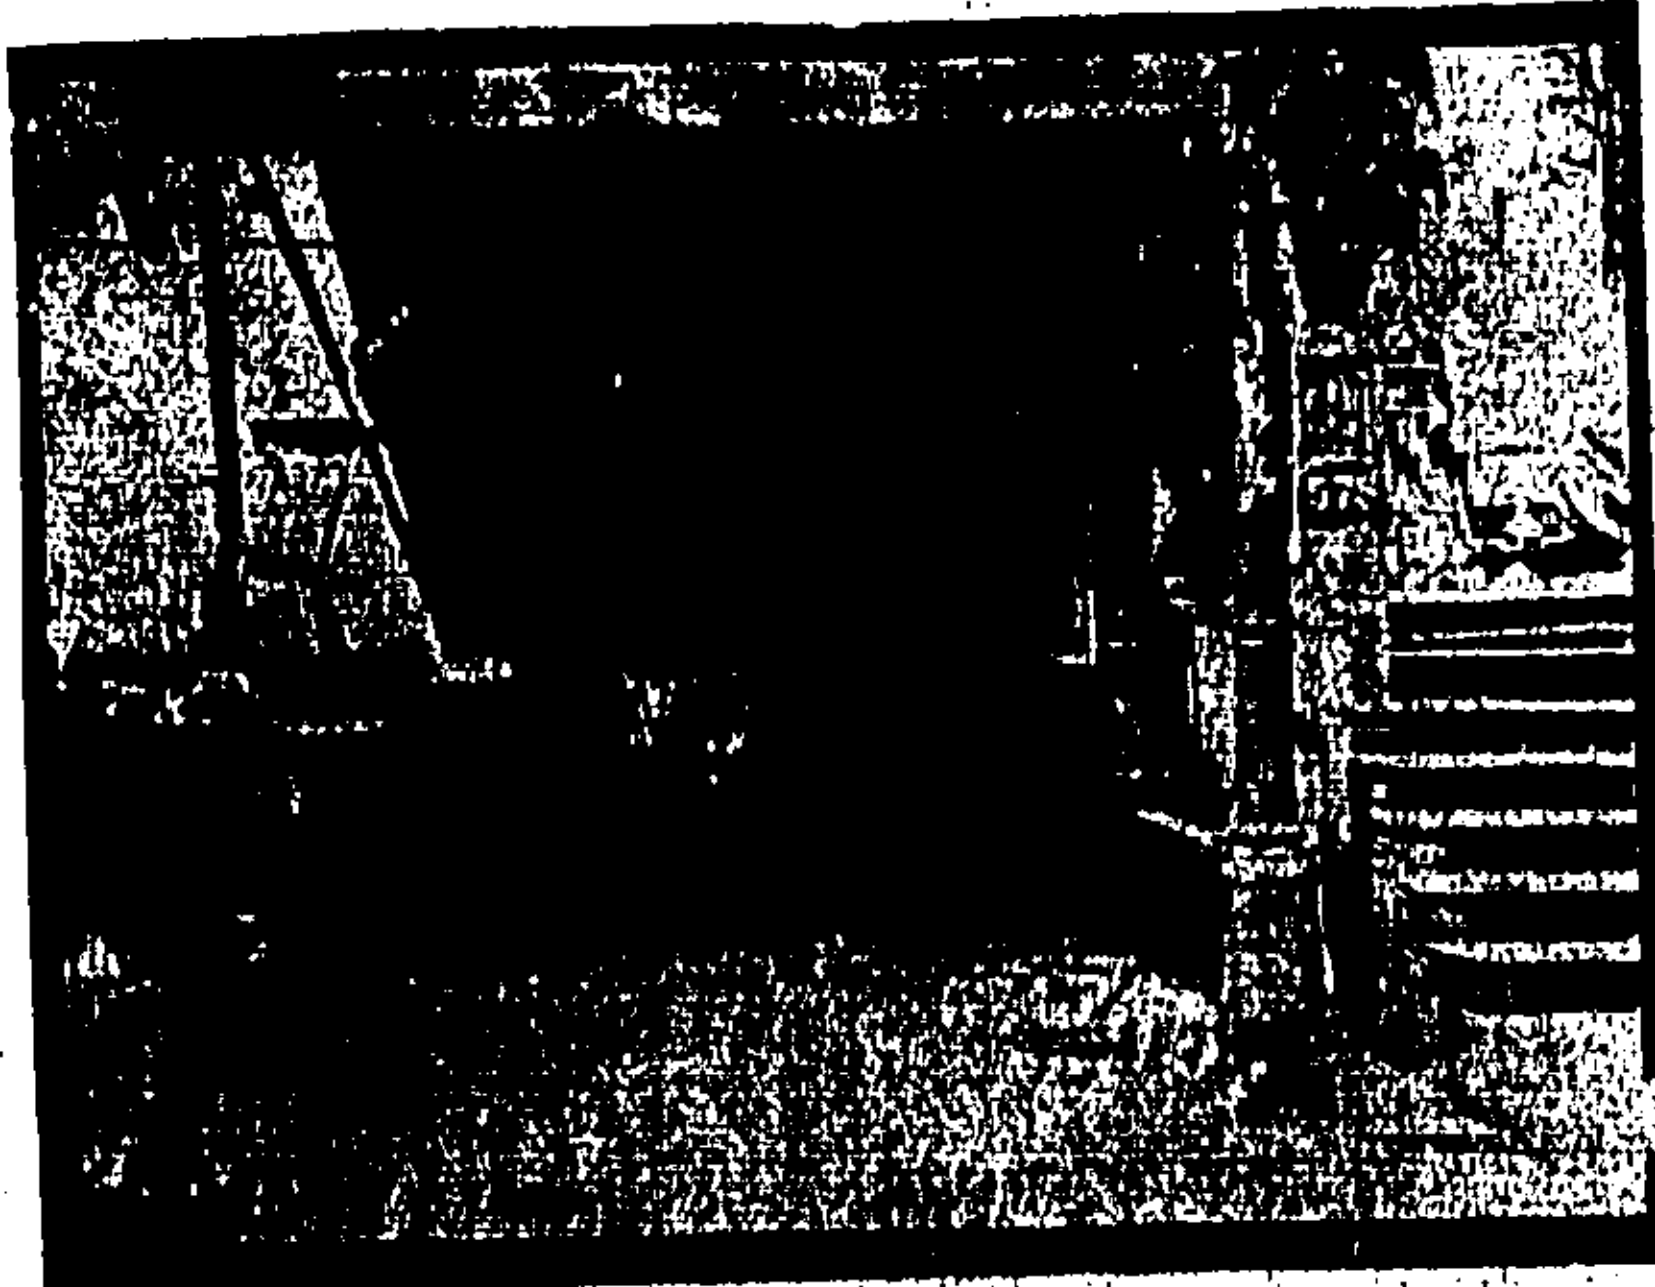

Indeed there are members of the community who feel so strongly about the question of slum-clearing in Hong Kong that they have expressed the opinion that once the scheme was launched, a recovery from the economic depression will be noticed in that such a stupendous scheme must necessarily give work to many of our unemployed, in addition to being the means of making money circulate more freely.

This may or may not be the flats, and it is no exaggeration case, but the fact remains that, to say that even now as many having made such rapid as forty people are known to advancement, is the Colony live in a flat originally designed going to be satisfied just to sit to hold a family of, at the most, back and rest on its past six or seven.

During the past year or two, we have heard so much about the "Come To Hong Kong" movement, and if we are going to make this Colony of ours a really attractive place, are we going to be satisfied with having only a few beauty spots and places of amusement to offer our visitors? Would it not be better still if we could truthfully say to all and sundry that Hong Kong is indeed a modern city in every sense of the word? But so long as these large slum areas are allowed to remain, how can we ever hope to claim the name of a modern city?

Alarming Number Of Deaths

THE foregoing, however, is but only a very minor argument in favour of slum-clearing. What is most important is the alarming figures issued weekly regarding the number of deaths from tuberculosis and other serious diseases, and after all is said and done, the root of all these troubles may be traced to overcrowding, and overcrowding only happens in places where the poorer classes, not being able to afford better premises, are forced to live in great numbers in ill-lit and ill-ventilated

The only places that show any semblance of cleanliness and order in the slum quarters are the temples, for the poorer classes are very superstitious people and believe that they must keep the place of worship clean if they are to be free of all evil. ("Herald" photo).

will have to proceed very gradually, but, having pulled one block of houses down, what would be the next step? Taking it for granted that the site thus cleared would occupy some 25,000 or 30,000 sq. ft. the erection of a block of cement concrete houses would be proceeded with, and in this connection it must have to be borne in mind that woodwork will have to be avoided as far as possible. The building will probably be a five-storied one, and the roof space will be reserved as a roof garden, to serve as the "lungs" for that particular block, and just as the roof will be reserved for this purpose, so the ground floor would be reserved for shops. The one thing that must be remembered is that no cooking should be allowed on any floor, and in order that the tenants might be catered for insofar as food is concerned, a "community restaurant" would be housed on each floor where food may be had at a very nominal charge.

This picture shows a scene that is not uncommon in the slum districts. The house seen here is almost unfit for habitation, but "beggars can't be choosers" and so they are still occupied. ("Herald" photo).

Colony but would also be places fit for habitation, where the babies of the poorer classes would be given a real chance to be brought up in surroundings which would not be a handicap to their delicate health.

Having formed this combine, the first step would be to demolish all the houses, whether condemned by the Building Authority or not, in the slum areas. This would of necessity be a very slow process, as work

Companies To Secure Different Districts

WITHOUT going into figures, it will perhaps be agreed that the people responsible for this scheme will find that they will be more than repaid for their initial outlay by the dividends that will be paid subsequently. Of course it will be futile to expect any immediate repayment, for it will have to be taken for granted that for the first year or two all income derived from rent etc., will be placed in reserve for any incidental expenses that might crop up in the maintenance of the flats.

In order that this scheme might be carried out without a hitch, the Government might even award districts to different parties, or companies, each with a capital in the neighbourhood of $1,500,000, and a condition may be made that no company may embark on the scheme until such time as two-thirds of the authorised capital is paid up.

One thing that has to be borne in mind is that the property-owners in the slum districts will not be deprived of their money, for they may be granted a certain number of shares in the new company as compensation, and as a guard against any attempt to use these shares for speculation purposes steps will have to be taken to ensure that they at no time will be allowed to be sold for anything less than their face value or more than 10 per cent. above this figure.

GOOD FARE AT THE QUEEN'S

Fine Supporting Films For Mystery Thriller

The Management of the Queen's Theatre announces an exceptionally fine programme of entertainment, commencing from to-day. Besides the feature film, "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," a rollicking mystery thriller featuring William Powell and Jean Arthur, there will be a "March Of Time" and a colour cartoon, which brings back an old favourite in Felix the Cat. "The Ex-Mrs. Bradford," incidentally, was the only American film selected for showing on the maiden voyage of the "Queen Mary," a very high tribute indeed to its entertainment qualities.

TYPHOON WARNING

According to a message received by the American Consulate-General yesterday morning from the Manila Observatory, at 9 a.m. a typhoon was situated in about Longitude 135 E., Latitude 10 N., moving west-north-west. The position is well out to sea, about 500 miles east of the Philippine Islands.

1 Welch's is nature's own way to better health. It is rich in the very elements the body requires.

2 It's simple pre-digested sugar, combats fatigue—floods the system with new energy—new strength—new vigour.

3 Welch's nourishes, too. Builds strong bones, clears the blood of impurities. Creates appetite, acts as a gentle laxative.

A glass of Welch's Grape Juice every day is indeed a sound road to better health. And how delicious it tastes, too—the rich, tart-sweet taste of luscious Concord grapes. Drink it for your health's sake.

WHY WELCH'S AND NOT CHEAPER JUICES

Welch's Grape Juice is well worth its slight additional cost. It is full strength—contains no added water, no adulterants, no synthetic flavour, no artificial colouring, no preservatives. It is certified pure and pasteurized. Always insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice.

MINE DISASTER
IN ENGLAND*Rescue Parties Take Grave Risks.*MORE BODIES BROUGHT-TO THE SURFACE

London, Yesterday.
The inquest was opened yesterday at Barnsley on 32 victims of the disaster at the Wharfedale Woodmoor Colliery, whose bodies have been recovered. Evidence of identification was given in several cases by wives who lost their husbands or mothers who lost their only sons. A relief fund has been opened by the Mayor of Barnsley.

The efforts to recover the remaining 25 bodies are continuing but are rendered difficult and dangerous by gas. Twenty more bodies were brought to the surface yesterday. The rescue parties, for which there is no lack of volunteers, are risking asphyxiation, sudden and without warning, by carbon monoxide.

The veteran President of the Miners' Federation, Mr. Herbert Smith, went down the pit yesterday immediately on his arrival. He and two other miners' officials had rushed by air from Prague, where they were attending the International Miners' Conference. — Reuter.

PALESTINE UNREST
SEAFORTH AND CAMERON HIGHLANDERS IN ACTION

Jerusalem, Yesterday.
Two more Jews were killed during Thursday night, one outside Tel Aviv and the other near Nederah, while a Jewish watchman was seriously wounded during an Arab fusillade on a Jewish settlement near Jerusalem. Three Arab snipers were killed and two captured.

An officer in the Cameron Highlanders was slightly wounded in an engagement north of Nablus. Arabs fired on a convoyed omnibus from Haifa to Tel Aviv. The military escort retaliated, and a contingent of Seaforth Highlanders was rushed from Nablus, while aircraft co-operated in repulsing the attackers. Following the engagement the troops pursued a band of Arabs, of whom five were killed.

Simultaneously aircraft operating independently in the hills accounted for a further 18 casualties. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

TREASURY BILLS ISSUE

London, Yesterday.—The total amount applied for in tenders for £45,000,000 Treasury bills was £70,985,000. The average rate per cent. for bills at three months was 10/6.04d., against 10/6.35d. a week ago.—British Wireless Service.

ANGLO-ARGENTINE
TRADE*Agreement To Be Terminated

London, Yesterday.
The Anglo-Argentine Trade Agreement of 1933 was concluded for an initial period of three years, and on May 7, 1936, the agreement became subject to termination at any time after November 7 on the expiration of six months' notice. In April, however, negotiations for the revision of the agreement were undertaken, and in these circumstances the two Governments agreed to reduce the period of notice, first, to four months, and subsequently to three months.

The negotiations have not yet been brought to a conclusion and the United Kingdom Government have now given notice to terminate the existing agreement on November 7 next.—British Wireless Service.

AUTOMATIC
TELEPHONES*Another Exchange Now
Opened In London

London, Yesterday.
With the opening to-day of the 99th automatic exchange in the London telephone area the development of the automatic system is carried to a state when roughly half of all London area subscribers are served by this method. To-day's change-over is at the "Royal" exchange, serving a busy commercial area on the south-east boundary of the city. The traffic passing through the exchange, which has provision for 9,400 lines, will reach about 17,000 calls hourly at the busiest part of the day.—British Wireless Service.

AIR DEFENCE IN ENGLAND*Another Command Created

London, Yesterday.
The War office announced yesterday that Lieut.-General J. M. R. Harrison has been appointed commander of the 2nd Anti-aircraft Division, which is to be formed to provide further anti-aircraft defences for the Midlands and north of England from units of the Royal Artillery and the Infantry of the Territorial Army. As announced last month these units have agreed to be converted to anti-aircraft defence. — British Wireless Service.

BRITISH DENIALNo Question Of Export
Of Armaments

London, Yesterday.
The allegation published abroad that Vickers Armstrong were fulfilling a large order for the Spanish Government for armaments was denied in British official quarters yesterday afternoon. It was stated that Vickers Armstrong had made no application for an export licence, without which no arms or munitions can be sent out of Britain.—British Wireless Service.

Athens, Yesterday.
The situation in the country is quiet, after the declaration of martial law. The tension is so relaxed that the King was able to leave the capital for a short holiday in Corfu. In order to curtail expenditure the Government has stopped the payment of the salaries of Members of Parliament, which has now been dissolved. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Athens, Later: A new Cabinet has been announced, with General Metaxas as Premier, Foreign Minister, Minister of War and Minister of the Navy. The King left last evening on board a destroyer for Corfu, where he will stay until the middle of September. General Metaxas will visit Corfu occasionally to submit documents for his signature. — Reuter.

On Haisborough Sands

London, Yesterday.
The Cromer lifeboat was out yesterday in response to a message stating that the 6013-ton French ship San Francisco, of Havre, was ashore on Haisborough Sands. There was a heavy ground swell and a dense fog prevailing at the time. The company state that the vessel was undamaged and it is hoped that she will be refloated on the night tide.—British Wireless Service.

The Fastest Fighter
So much for civil flying. Perhaps your eyes are turned upwards more in apprehension than in hope and you ask "What of war-planes?"

We have been told that Britain possesses the world's fastest single-seater fighter. What does that mean to you? Politically, no doubt, it is a good thing. But we know that certain foreign Powers have bombing planes only 20 or 30 m.p.h. slower. At present speeds London is only 8 or 9 minutes from the coast, and by the time the enemy was located the damage would be done. And speeds leap upwards every year.

Personally, I should hate the job of attacking the heavily armed bomber of the present day. In the last war we selected our enemy's "blind spot." That Achilles' heel has now been eliminated, for the up-to-date bomber has machine-guns firing in every direction.

If War Came
I am no alarmist, but if war came, what then? You, if you lived in or near a large city, would be liable to be driven out of your home with small incendiary bombs, and in the streets would be a ready victim to poison-gas bombs.

We are still talking big navies. For their own defence battleships must become floating aerodromes in order to keep the enemy at bay. But if their opponents have enough planes, some of their torpedo bombers are bound to get through and destroy the ship, while one shudders to think of the havoc caused by a huge fleet of aerial "fireships," with no man on them, so controlled by wireless as to go straight to their objective. I have carefully avoided technicalities, for the time is past when we who fly had to try to interest non-flyers. We are on the eve of an era when they will no more be able to avoid the aeroplane than the motor-car or the radio set.

Perhaps I am wrong in using the future tense. The things of which I speak are almost upon us to-day.

Regionalism

WITH refugees arriving from Wuchow, and Kwangsi dollars interchangeable for cents it is easy to see the humour of General Li Chung-jen and Pai Chung-shi applying for appointments to act as pacificators of the Province they have thrown into confusion — or in the alternative to be provided with funds to make a tour of Europe for the purpose of reporting on a modern military organisation. What is not so easy is for a European, who is conscious that there used to be a cultural unity called Europe, just as there was a cultural unity called China, to have the presumption to criticise people who are faced with the same trend of chaos as we are, and who do not seem to be making a worse job of it. Every decade creates its own slogans and cant words to deal with current conditions, and the most hard-worked words at the moment are "regionalism" and "totalitarianism." No matter what form of government we may prefer as an ideal, it seems that what both Europe and China stand most in need of is a man — and it seems that China has gone nearer to finding one than we have.

It is hard for those who have hoped against hope, even in defiance of circumstance, that the League of Nations would establish itself, to have to acknowledge that after making all allowance for adverse fortune, it has not succeeded even in failing with dignity. The end of sanctions — which meant the recognition that nothing but war could be relied on as a last resource to settle disputes — was managed by a mere dodge to avoid a direct vote. The Assembly made a "recommendation" rather than a resolution, and shelved even the proposal that no recognition should be given to the Italian conquest of Abyssinia. It now appears that Austria, Hungary, and Switzerland never imposed sanctions at all, and that 13 other States were very lax. Negotiations for the renewal of British-Italian trade have revealed that Italy owes $13,000,000 in private debts to English traders, and that the Government refuses to secure repayment. In other words Italy got funds to conquer Abyssinia under the guns of the British fleet by not paying for her supplies laid in before the beginning of hostilities. In fact the position now is, not only in Italy but in Germany and many other countries, that the debtor calls the tune, not the creditor, and that trade would be merely a gift of goods for years to come, until such time, if that time should ever come, when the old debts have been paid. Extension of credit merely means a bigger loss.

Another highlight on the events of the past year, and the movement of the British fleet to Alexandria, is the revelation of Italian intrigues in Egypt, which led to what was practically an ultimatum. "The British Government will look upon any interference in the relationships of Egypt with Great Britain as an unfriendly act, and will take whatever measures appear to be called for to deal with it." No Italian has ever had any reason to complain of his treatment in Egypt. It is simply that the tradition of maintaining European status in other continents has faded away.

Nor is there any sentiment of loyalty to other Europeans arising from the fact that we are engaged in a task in Palestine which we were invited to undertake by Italy just as much as by any other League Member. Arabs are incited to rebel, and then left with complete lack of scruple to take the consequences. It may be said that after all these countries are not European. But it has been proved that Italy, though failing to pay for what she has bought, has been spending money to assist one of the rival parties in the Spanish struggle. Planes and machine-guns have been captured through a forced landing in Algeria. The calculation of course was that if a Fascist Government could be established Spain would become a partner in a scheme to control the Mediterranean. Everywhere we find that "Regionalism" — the loyalty to one section of a wider whole — has driven out all thought of wider loyalty.

The most ominous complication in the strife is that this triumph of geographical or perpendicular rivalry coincides with a horizontal division of classes. There is no need to diverge into any abstruse economical questions or arguments for or against Communism. The simple fact is that no economist would support the sort of propaganda that is rife. It is a crude appeal to discontent, and an incitement to violence. There is no denying that many go short of what they might easily be provided with. But the irony lies in the fact that the only way to improve things is to cultivate the co-operative spirit which is being destroyed.

Hong Kong Personalities

Continuing the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Watson, the talented Hungarian artist.

MR. H. C. C. E. BONHOFF

OUR Personality this week is Mr. Hedwig Carl Clemens Ernst Bonhoff, Branch Manager of the West Coast Life Insurance Co. of San Francisco.

Mr. Bonhoff was born at Wellburg, Germany, on January 14, 1891, and educated at Marburg, near Frankfurt. On the completion of his college career he came out to Tientsin to join the firm of Siemens and Co., in 1912 and in 1914, on the outbreak of war, went to Tsingtao, as a volunteer, to take part in the defence of the fortress. Taken prisoner when Tsingtao fell, he spent the next five years of his life behind barbed wire in Japan, not being released for more than a year after the armistice, being finally set free on Christmas Eve, when he was drafted home.

In Sumatra and N. Z. As a result of conversations on board he decided to try his luck in Sumatra and left the ship at Sabang. He spent a year and a half thereafter in Sumatra, first with a mercantile firm and afterwards as an assistant on a rubber and coffee estate; but, finding his health unable to stand up against the trying climate of that part of the world, he returned to Tientsin after a brief period in Shanghai. Here he remained for the next seven years, the last two years being in the employ of Messrs. Melchers and Co. In 1927 he married and the following year he left Tientsin with his wife to try his hand at farming in New Zealand. But shortly after he had embarked on this new venture the depression began weighing heavily on the farming industry and he lost his all. His two sons, now aged 7 and 5 respectively, were born in New Zealand.

Back to China He resolved once more to try his luck in China, which had been kinder to him than the other countries he had tried, and, with the assistance of relatives, found his way back, with his family, to Shanghai, full of pluck and determination. Reaching Shanghai in 1931, he joined the West Coast Life Insurance Co. as an agent, his perseverance and good work being rewarded by his appointment as Branch Manager of the company in Hong Kong in January of this year.—H. S. W.

"CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK"

Mr. T'so Tsun On Honoured

CHINESE POLICE RESERVE
PIONEER

Mr. T'so Tsun On, the eldest son of the Hon. Dr. and Mrs. S. W. T'so, and Officer Commanding, Chinese Company Hong Kong Police Reserve, was the recipient of the congratulations of his many friends and business associates recently when he was appointed an Unofficial Justice of the Peace, and an Honorary A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor.

Although still a very young man, Mr. T'so has been keenly associated with the public life of the Colony and the honours conferred upon him are well-deserved.

Educated at St. Stephen's Born in Hong Kong in 1904, Mr. T'so Tsun On received his education at St. Stephen's College, and during the strike in 1925 he was actively engaged in assisting his father in his work as Chinese Labour Controller. When the Chinese Company of the Police Reserve was reorganised in 1927, Mr. T'so conducted the recruiting and generally helped in putting the Company on a sound working basis.

In 1929 he went to England to further his education and on his return to Hong Kong was appointed a Joint Honorary Secretary of the Victoria League, which gives free advice to, and secures introduction for, Chinese students who proceed to England to continue their studies.

A.S.P. Of Police Reserve In 1931, Mr. T'so was made an A.S.P. of the Police Reserve and was placed in charge of the Chinese Company, which position he has held ever since. It is undoubtedly due to his hard work, sound judgment and general popularity among the members that he has brought and kept the Company up to its present high standard. Everyone will agree that not only is it most appropriate but also quite natural that the son of the originator, and "the man behind the scenes," should occupy this responsible position.

He was at one time the Secretary of the Eastern Branch of the Society for the Protection of Children and he is at present a member of the Executive Committee of the Society. He is also at present the Hon. Secretary of the Euro-American Returned Students' Union.

Broadcasting Interests In April last year, Mr. T'so was invited to serve on the Broadcasting Committee and through his efforts a remarkable improvement has been shown in the Chinese programmes.

Besides his own activities, Mr. T'so is also helping and taking keen interest in various other public works with which his father is associated. His popularity in his private life as well as in his public capacity is amply born out by his great number of friends both amongst the Chinese and foreign communities of the Colony.

Five Years Ago

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of August 9, 1931).

It is announced that the long-distance telephone line between Hong Kong and Canton is nearing completion and that on or about September 1, His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, will hold his first official conversation with a high dignity in Canton.

The U.S.S. Helena beat the Americans by 9 runs to 8 in the local baseball League. Thompson, Mayhew, Lawrence and Campbell were outstanding for the losers.

S. V. Gittins beat W. Lawrence in the 50 Yards free-style event during the second Interport swimming trials held at the Victoria Recreation Club last night. Gittins's time was 26 1/5 secs.

Government Appointments

The following appointments etc. are notified in the Government Gazette:—

The Hon. Mr. Robert Hormus Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., to be a member of the Authorised Architects' Consulting Committee, vice

Mr. T'so Tsun On, above, was recently appointed an Unofficial Justice of the Peace and an Honorary A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor.

MINING CRAZE CONTINUES

But Not To Detriment
Of Local Stocks

MONEY USUALLY RETURNS TO COLONY

The activity in the local share market, insofar as the Manila mining stocks are concerned, remains unabated and a visit to the local Bourse will reveal the fact that the whole place appears to have gone "mine" crazy, the only apparent interest manifested being in the gold mine shares in the Philippine Islands.

In a conversation with Mr. C. A. L. Ricketts, Secretary of the Hong Kong Sharebrokers' Association, however, it was learned that the undertone of all local stocks was healthy and Mr. Ricketts added that he wanted to refute the rumours that large sums of Hong Kong capital were being sent down to the Philippines, to the detriment of local stocks.

It was true, said Mr. Ricketts, that a great volume of business was being done in these shares, but the money thus invested inevitably returned to the Colony, plus whatever profit that had been made from these investments. It was equally true that some of the less fortunate ones got "stung" but, as compared with the lucky investors, the number of these was fortunately very few.

Another prominent figure in the local share market said he did not agree that the transactions in the mining shares caused the fall in prices of local counters. On the other hand, he said, it was due to this business that the share market is being kept active, and that whenever profits are taken, the money thus realised is kept well within Hong Kong.

This gentleman added that those concerned are very careful regarding their dealings, and very often a client who has given an order to buy in the morning gives an order to sell the same afternoon, after having made a few points in that particular transaction.

Tolerance
"The greatest single mistake lies in that we don't let the other person be fundamentally different from us."
—David Seabury.

Beauty
"It is the spirit behind beauty, rather than mere physical perfection itself, which singles a woman out from amongst others of her kind."
—Wilder Antony.

Gentility
"For every noisy way of doing a thing there is a quiet way which is just as good. Don't let anyone tell you the opposite."

• JADE • IN ALL ITS EXCELLENCY

ONE of the pupils of the great sage, Confucius, asked him once, "Master, why is it that wise men value jade more than other stones? Is it because it is rare and other stones are common?"

Confucius answered, "It is not because jade is rare that it is so highly valued. It is because ever since the olden days, wise men have seen in jade all the different virtues. It is soft, smooth and shining, like kindness; it is hard, fine and strong, like intelligence; its edges seem sharp but do not cut, like justice; it hangs down to the ground, like humility; when struck, it gives a clear, ringing sound, like music; the stains in it, which are not hidden and which add to its beauty, are like truthfulness; its brightness is like Heaven, while its firm substance, born of the mountains and the waters, is like the Earth. The Book of Poetry says, 'When I think of a wise man, he seems to me like jade.' That is why wise men love jade so much."

Beautiful Carvings

It was carved into all sorts of ornaments and vases; girdle-pendants were made of it, hair-pins and ear-rings; bowls were made for the kings' and the nobles' use and vases for the sacrificial offerings. Yet you would never believe, if you saw these delicate ornaments, these bowls cut so thin that the light shows through them, that jade is harder than iron. No tool can break it and no chisel can cut it. How then, you may ask—as you look at the work of later centuries, at the openwork carving, the vases with figures of dragons curling over the brims, and the little trees whose leaves and flowers are cut from different coloured jade—how then are these things made?

Saws And Drills

Jade can be cut only with saws or drills. It is first cut with an iron saw, whose edge is covered with moistened emery dust. The friction and the emery cut where the iron cannot. To hollow it out, drills must be used, also helped by emery or jewel dust, for jewels are the hardest things that we know, and when they are ground into powder and that powder is used on the edge of a saw or drill it will wear down the jade.

The finer carving was done with tools that look like nails, the head being the part that cuts. . . . There was no electric power to turn the tools in those days; they were worked with a bow whose string was twisted around the upper part of the tool, so that when the bow was pulled back and forth, the tool was whirled around very swiftly. After the carving was done, the stone must be polished, first with a wooden polisher, then with a leather one, finer and finer jewel-dust being used until the surface had that brilliance that made it seem like virtue itself.

Patient Hands

What labour and what patience it took to do this work! Ten years were sometimes spent in the making of one fine piece. Work was done in other materials just as devotedly; metalwork, wood carving, weaving, embroidery and pottery were made by the clever, patient hands of workmen who understood the meaning of the materials they dealt with, and the purpose for which it would be used. Just as the farmer loved and cared for his land, so the craftsman loved his work, and for centuries he has filled the Middle Kingdom with workmanship as lovely as a fruit or a flower.—Elizabeth Seeger, in "The Pageant of Chinese History," (London: Routledge; New York: Longmans, Green).

The Lovable Fragrance

When confidences are exchanged, the latest fashion news discussed, then it is agreed that Yardley Lavender is the only wear for this clime. Its clean, fresh fragrance is charming at all times, but for outdoor sports, entertainments and the little informal occasions of the daytime, Yardley Lavender is the one perfume which is always delightful and always in good taste.

Use Yardley Lavender after the bath, and remain ever fresh, and continually attractive throughout the hottest day.

Mainly about WOMEN

U.S. Women's Achievements

WOMEN have achieved much in England, but it is in America that one in every four of the nation's workers is a woman. Once and for all, it would seem, they have taken their place beside the men; whatever causes for uneasiness may spring from what has happened to their German and Italian sisters, there are substantial figures to prove that they form an integral and indispensable part of modern American business. A leader of business and professional women comes forward with the gentle suggestion that "a woman's strike, a woman's day of rest, would play havoc with the business world."

It is interesting to see just what the American woman has achieved.

To-day they pour in and out of office buildings, a bright stream; they tie together the telephone conversations of the entire world. They are clerks and executives, saleswomen and buyers, writers and editors and manufacturers of books. They design clothes and stage sets; they decorate homes and offices. They run flower shops, clothes shops, book shops. They make candy and metal pipes.

In certain wide reaches of the business world, indeed, a man among the force is as much a matter for comment as a woman was in earlier days.

The pile of numbers that these women workers make when lumped together is as impressive as the picture they must present to the wandering eye. According to the last census 10½ million women were "gainfully employed" in 1930 out of a total feminine population of 60 million. And these figures include women in every kind of job, from unskilled to highly professional.

Almost 2,000,000 are office-workers. In certain positions they reign supreme: of the stenographers and typists in the country 95 per cent. are women; 94 per cent. of the telephone operators are women. Of the book-keepers and cashiers 63 per cent. are women. There are 706,000 saleswomen, 113,000 feminine hairdressers and manicurists, 57,000 hotel keepers and managers, 3,276 clergywomen.

A recent survey of American women, made to determine how far they had gone, and with the expressed intent of passing judgement on their achievements, found 16 who had passed the severe tests set for success in the masculine fields. One mines coal and one mines gelatine, two are bankers, and one is a candy queen. One is an efficiency engineer (with almost a dozen children), one is an advertising expert. One is the president of a public utility, another a maker of dresses, doing $3,000,000 worth of business a year.

Of course the big feminine money-makers of the country are the women manufacturers of beauty preparations, the stylists, the promoters, the editors of and writers for women's magazines. And perhaps the most startling example of their influence lies in the realm of style. They have created an entirely new profession for themselves in advising business and industry on matters of style appeal. The influence of stylists extends from the colour of the knife handle and the shape of cup and saucer to "style features" of automobiles and streamline locomotives.

Great gains have been made. Certainly it is no longer true that there is a prejudice against women in all lines of business. In some the road is still hard. A monograph of the "Social Trends" series found, for instance, that in the metal trades there was "violent prejudice against women's employment because of the mere fact that they were women." And such evidence could be collected about this field and that.

For all she has achieved, then, the modern American woman is far from reaching the feminist heaven where she is to be treated not as a woman but as a human being, where her work is to be considered solely on its merits and the payment for it is to be no different from that accorded to the man.—PHILIPPA.

THE August Bank Holiday maintained the reputation of official holidays in general by discouraging all attempts at carefree merriment, but at least it did something towards washing out the gutters. Is it a fact that holidays give us less than the average of food weather, or is the explanation merely that we notice bad weather more? Nothing is more deceptive than recollections of weather. Old inhabitants tell us every year that what we are getting is quite unusual, that it is twenty years since so and so happened before — always it is the unusual that happens. The meteorological records are in continual protest against the human recollections. But these are not necessarily wrong. A heavy shower at midnight will pass unnoticed when a shower at midday when the picnic feast is spread out on the grass will be remembered for years. It is, however, bad luck when the rain is so heavy as to frighten people away from venturing out even to the indoors entertainments, and Fred, Astaire and Jack Buchanan are left to tap merrily to empty benches.

Tap Dancing

TAP Dancing is a great improvement on some of the latest crazes, which surely reached their nadir with the "Black Bottom." When instructors in Hong Kong advertise special tuition in something we may be quite sure that it has done the world tour and reached the point at which somebody always invents something else. But in this case it is such a thoroughly healthy exercise, and teaches us so inexorably to mark the rhythm of the music, that it should have a long life. It has, as a matter of fact, already had a long life. The new rage comes to us now, no doubt, like most other fashions, from Hollywood through the films, but there was a haute école of tap dancing many years before there were films. The origin is in dispute. Some people derive it from the American Negro, who has certainly taken it up. But there does not seem to be any foundation for this except that other popular performances from the tango onwards have had that origin. It could hardly be a traditional dance in the days of slavery, because the negroes did not wear shoes of any sort. There can be no taps without some kind of footwear, and the rival derivation from the clog-wearing millhands of the North of England is more probable. Clogs in fact make a rhythmical beat in the ordinary process of walking home from the factory, and tempt a few extra steps whenever the wearer is in good spirits.

The Off Season

SOME people take life as they find it, and some people are always wondering what it would look like if they could see round a corner. What, for instance, do footballers do in August? One of the most extraordinary things in the way of optical illusions is sudden magnification of an athlete when he strips. Quite possibly we may sit beside a hefty three-quarter in the tram without noticing him at all, though on the field he would look double life-size. Is it possible that our everyday clothes were invented to make us all look as ordinary as possible? Gilbert told us that "when the enterprising burglar isn't burgling he loves to lie a basking in the sun." The heroes of Interports no doubt smoke cigarettes like the rest of us, and sit on stools and write up ledgers, but it is very difficult to realise it. Next month no doubt they will begin to reveal their real character by going out before breakfast for training runs.

The Racing Season

THE Jockey Club at any rate is well up to the times in publishing their record of all the running during the first half of the season, with full details. The number of ponies being so limited it is doubtful whether any racing fans anywhere are so well provided with information — of past form. What a pity that it is so useless. Careful study of the record will only lead us to a succession of small dividends that will be swallowed up in big upsets. Otherwise the ideal would be to follow the lady whose only investments were to back Liberty Bay for a place when it was in the betting.

Bowls In The Dark
IT now appears to be quite the thing at the Indian Recreation Club to play bowls until complete darkness has set in. Two weeks ago, a rinks match finished at 8.15 p.m. and a torch had to be used to show where the jack was. Last week a pairs match did not finish till 8 p.m. and this time cigarettes and matches were used to shed a guiding light!

Anslo Well Up!
J. F. McGOWAN, the C.S.C.C. lawn bowler, who lost a box of cigars to P. P. Anslo, H.K.F.C., as the result of a friendly wager on the result of a bowls match recently, seems to have more than got his own back on Anslo. When the C.S.C.C. played the C.C.C. in the First Division, Anslo promised McGowan his two pet canaries if the C.S.C.C. won and they did!

Chairs For Bowlers?
L. JACK, the Kowloon Cricket Club lawn bowler, who played No. 1 to W. W. Hirst in their match against Craigengower in the Second Division last Saturday, created a precedent by "sitting-out" after every head. He had a chair at one end of the green and after sending his two woods down, made himself comfortable till it was time to start on the next end.

Plays For Opposition
W. J. (Willie) Howard, the Craigengower Cricket Club tennis player, was called upon to play for the Kowloon Cricket Club in their junior division bowls match against C.C.C. at Happy Valley last Saturday. Kowloon were one short and Howard's services were enlisted, and very well he did too.

Kwok for Interport?
KWOK CHUN-HANG, the Colony and Interport breast-stroke swimming champion, may take part in the Interport swimming between Shanghai and Tientsin next month. He is at present making enquiries as to his eligibility and whether the contest will be held any earlier, as he will not be able to leave Hong Kong before the last week in August. Kwok is at present a resident of Shanghai, where he is studying. He has already been resident in the northern metropolis for over three months.

Pui-Ching Setback
THE Pui-Ching Academy baseball team have suffered another loss as B. Wong, their second baseman, left for America by the s.s. President Grant.

Bowls On Saturated Green
DUE to the heavy rainfall, Craigengower's green was absolutely saturated last Saturday and when the first two or three heads were played the woods almost skimmed over the surface, splashing their way down the green.

New Soccer Team
THE newly formed Club of the Public Works Department will be entering a team in the Third Division of the Football League this season.

Mair's Misfortune
IT is a pity that W. Mair, of the Police Recreation Club, had to withdraw his name from the list of players available for the Lawn Bowls Interport. It was thought in some quarters that he stood a very good chance of being selected.

Local Soccer Referees
THE football referee classes held by the Army during the summer are being concluded and it is expected that about 15 new referees will be available for the League games this season. Sergeant-Major Chapman, Sergeant Isley, and Corporal Reynolds have been conducting these classes.

League With 24 Teams
THAT football is still the most popular sport in the Army is evidenced by the fact that in the Army League this season there will be no less than 24 teams. This year the teams will be divided into sections from regiments on the mainland and those on the Island and the winners of the sections will meet in a deciding game.

Nest Egg For Saints
OWING to the fact that neither the Young Indians nor the Radio Sports Club are entering teams in the Football League this season, most of their players will now be seen in the Third Division for St. Joseph's. Hamet, O. el Arculli, H. Souza and Yusuf, of the Radio are youngsters on whom St. Joseph's would do well to keep their eye.

Gottsche At Bangkok
W. GOTTSCHIE, the leader of the Saints in the Third Division of the Football League, left for Bangkok recently. He hopes to continue playing football while there.

L. A. R. Duncan At Foochow
L. A. R. DUNCAN, who was runner-up in the Colony Open Pairs Lawn Bowls Championship last season with his father, R. Duncan, returned to the Colony a week ago last Thursday from Foochow on transfer. He is with the Asiatic Petroleum Co., Ltd. In former years he was a keen supporter of the Hong Kong Hockey Club.

R. O. F. KING, who represented the Colony against Shanghai in the 1933 Interport Rugby match at the Valley, is now a reporter with the London Daily Sketch. He was recently seen at Lord's writing up one of the county cricket matches.

The new sport of water skiing, as introduced on the Mueggel Lake, near Berlin, is declared to be perfectly safe as it is possible to stand up from any position following a fall.

Local Bowls Fashions
STEWART LOGAN, the Police skip, set a new lawn bowls fashion last Saturday when, playing against the Craigengower "A", he found the green so wet that he had to tuck his trousers in his socks. N. P. Karanjia, of the C.C.C. found another way out—that of rolling his trousers up, almost to the knee!

Chan Ki-chung Back
CHAN KI-CHUNG, the well-known Cantonese China National swimming champion, recently returned from a special course of military training in Nanking, and will probably be seen in action for the Mak Ngah Association in the quadrangular swimming contest being arranged by the European Y.M.C.A. in their pool on August 26.

Sprinter Becomes Canoeist
C. DALMADA e CASTRO, who is the best sprinter over short distances at Club de Recreio, is also very keen on swimming. He favours Middle Beach, Repulse Bay, and often goes some distance out in his neat little canoe.

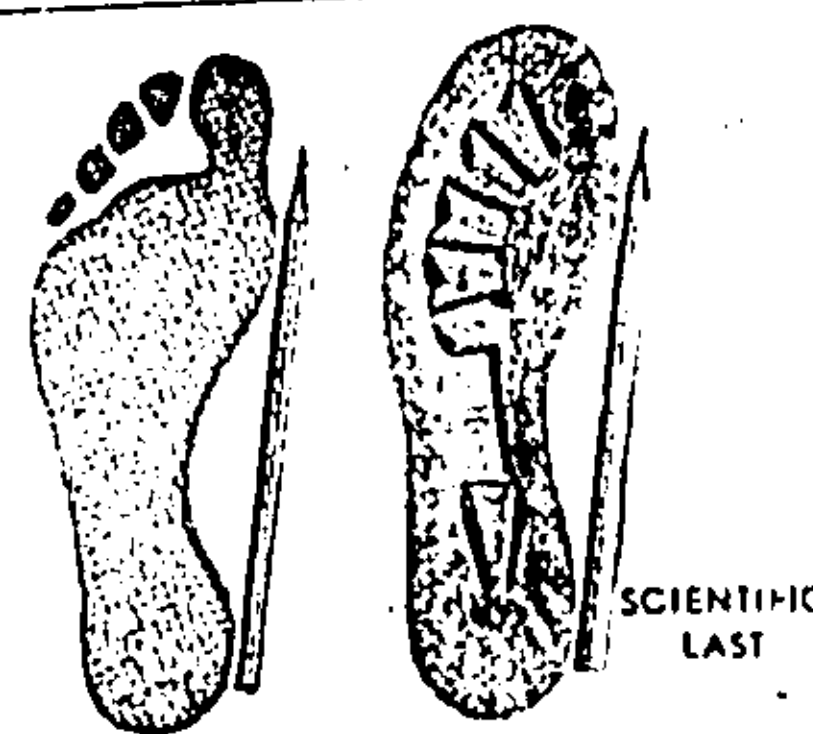

Young Swimmer's Setback
DEREK HOLLIDGE, the young son of the Civil Service Cricket Club First Division lawn bowls skip, met with a nasty accident about the middle of last week while out cycling, sustaining a broken arm. Derek is one of the keenest swimmers in the Central British School, but it is feared that he will not be able to swim now for some weeks to come.

MOTORISTS WISE
SIMONIZ

THE exploits of Jesse Owens in the Olympic Games at Berlin are a testimonial to the cosmopolitan spirit that inspires the organization, and are an interesting incident in several ways. A few years ago the triumph of a negro in open encounter with white competitors would have made more of a sensation. Without any express ban on athletic activities, there was a social exclusion that was equally effective, for neither the necessary competitors nor the necessary training would have been available. Probably the Prize Ring had more than anything else to do with the revolution that has established the rule that "open" events shall be really open. There was something illogical in proclaiming that so-and-so was the champion bruiser if it was known that there was somebody else standing in the crowd of spectators that could knock him out. But there was a great deal of furious opposition to the arrangement of a fight with the white champion for Jack Johnson, and a newsworld showing his ascendancy in the ring was productive of several riots, and soon withdrawn. Joe Louis had no such prejudice to combat, but even in his case the result of his big victory was not popular outside of Harlem, and the racial feeling aroused by his subsequent defeat is held by many to have justified the former principle that it is better to keep the races separate as far as fights are concerned. No such feeling need arise in the case of sprints and jumps and the other Olympic athletics, and it is an advance to have accepted the rule "let the best man win."

NEGROES AS RUNNERS

THE old prejudice is responsible for the fact that so far no negro from Africa has appeared in any of these contests. In the course of watching and often refereeing in sports in Africa both for whites and blacks, I have never seen a race contested by both, nor have I ever seen sprints run by Kafirs or Negroes except at schools and colleges. That is not to say that there is not plenty of raw material for record-makers. After school-age the African tends to look on running as a waste of effort unless it is done as a matter of business. The professional runner, whose livelihood is being taken away from him by the carriage of mails by motor cars, was a recognised institution. He carried his letter or letters in the top end of a bamboo stick which was slit and then tied so as to hold the letter safely. This stick, which was held perpendicularly, was a safe-conduct. The runner could go along lonely paths where the life of the sender of the message would have been in dire peril. He travelled at a peculiar rate which was neither walking nor running, with head thrown back to keep the lungs open, of between five and six miles an hour. One never saw a runner stop, though of course he must have done so sometimes, and he could go on for an unlimited time. There was little temptation to sleep on a journey because of the danger of wild beasts. An average run would be 120 miles, as most towns are that distance apart, and he would be expected to do the journey in two days, and return with the answer in another two days.

FOOTBALL 450 YEARS AGO

ONE of the most beautiful tombs in Westminster Abbey is that of King Henry VI, who is now chiefly remembered as the founder of Eton and King's College, Cambridge. King Henry, both in his lifetime, and after death—in the case of those who visited his tomb—was reputed to have the power of working miraculous cures. A list of 174 was compiled soon after his death, with a view to his beatification, and it appears that but for the interruption of the Reformation, we should have known him as "St. Henry." The papers in the case have been collected and published by a learned Jesuit, Father Paul Grosjean, and as the Latin is fluent and easy, they make very good reading. One of the cases is of a Nottinghamshire boy who, in the absence of any referee, got seriously injured at football. The

THE BIBLE AS THE "WORD OF GOD" THE THEME THAT RUNS THROUGH IT ALL HOW THE CHURCH CARRIES ON GOD'S PURPOSE

(By the Rev. J. N. LEWIS BRYAN)

TO many people the Bible is a book which contains a revelation of God and much valuable spiritual teaching. For others it forms a collection of proof-texts, which can be used to explain the way of salvation, and of mysterious prophecies about such things as the destinies of certain nations and the end of the world. Probably few people ever think of it as what it certainly is—the world's greatest missionary Book. That is because so few people read their Bible as a whole, or think of it as having one great theme running through it from cover to cover. Yet that is what it is. We do an unconscious dishonour to God's wisdom if we think that He has placed in our hands a Book which is a mere collection of more or less disconnected writings and skillfully-disguised prophecies; and we do not credit Him with having inspired the writing of a Book which has a unity of purpose and embodies a definite idea. We call the Bible "the Word of God," but in doing so, we ought to remember what a person's word is. It is the spoken thought of his mind. And if the Bible is really the Word of God, it must therefore set forth some great thought in God's mind. That is the true meaning of the word "inspiration," which means not that the Book has been verbally dictated by God, but that it embodies His thoughts, expresses His mind, and sets forth His purpose. The Bible Theme If therefore we take up our Bible with the intention of reading it as a whole, and trying to discover what it is really about, what do we find is the great theme with which it deals? Well, the story that runs all through begins with the call of a man called Abram. The preceding chapters, dealing with the origin of the world and of mankind, form a kind of introduction to the real story. And this story tells how God called one particular nation to be a missionary nation, to carry His truth to all the peoples of the earth; and how that nation failed in His great purpose and had finally to be set aside and rejected, whilst the work which it failed to do was handed over to others who were found ready and willing to do it. This is what the Bible is about; and this is the great theme which runs through it. It begins with one family called to leave its home; it ends with a great multitude, which no man can number, standing before the throne of God and before the Lamb. Tragedy of Failure In between lies a history which is sheer tragedy, because it is the story of human failure, refusal and blindness and of obstinate deafness to God's call. It is the pathetic story of the thwarting of God's plans and the disappointment of His hopes, which makes the Bible, in many ways, one of the saddest books in the world. In Ur of the Chaldees, a heathen land, dwelt this man Abram, for whom God had planned a great destiny, which was that through him and his seed should all the families of the earth be blessed. To this end he was given the knowledge of the true God, and was bidden to go forth into a new country that he might there become the founder of a nation by whose teaching and influence the whole world should be brought to know God.

This new country, Palestine, lay exactly at the centre of the then-known inhabited world, where all the great kingdoms of the earth met. Its situation as a missionary country was unique. And here, after many vicissitudes, the chosen nation came to its birth. Numerically it was small, but alone it knew the true God and held his knowledge as a precious trust and as an overwhelming responsibility.

God's Purpose Thwarted We watch to see whether it will lend itself to God's purpose and become in His hands an instrument through which all the families of the earth will be blessed; but not one glimmer of the missionary spirit did it manifest. Instead of seeing other nations as people to be brought to the knowledge of the true God they regarded contact with them as a "defilement" and desired nothing so much as their extermination. They made a barren ritualism of animal sacrifices in a gorgeous temple a substitute for the real service which God demanded from them. It was a great and terrible failure. The one bright spot of better things came from the Prophets, who arose, one after the other, in various times in their national life and tried without any success to open the eyes of this stiff-necked people to their danger and to recall them to their mission. But they called in vain. Unteachable They would not learn their lesson, despite their punishments; and so at last the drama of their national life worked out to its inevitable conclusion—the catastrophe of the Exile. It was the automatic punishment of a people who rejected the counsel of God and persisted on going its own selfish way. Even the lesson of the Exile, bitter though it was to their national life, made no real impression. "By the waters of Babylon they sat down and wept," when they remembered their own country and the days of old. But when God, making His last and final appeal, sent to them His only Son, still He found them unchanged in heart and mind. They still fancied themselves as God's favourites. They still drew aside their skirts from the "unclean Gentiles." Finally, the voice of their Messiah they silenced on the hillside of Calvary.

So it was, that, rejecting this people, God had to start afresh with a new Israel, the Christian Church, whose story is written in the New Testament. "By them the work was begun; and, though

THE CANTONESE ARTISTS

IT is only with the greatest diffidence that I can venture in these columns to draw my readers' attention to the great interest of the paintings shown at the Gloucester Building and the top of China Building. The marvellous dexterity of brushwork traditional in China is as obvious as in the old masters; what is new is the resort to Nature direct. Mr. Chiu Shiu Ngong evidently blazed the trail, but has difficulty in getting away from the traditional subjects, such as small birds or branches, fishes in shimmering water, and so on. Mr. Wong Shiu Keong breaks away to find subjects in "everyday" life, with notable success in several cases.

that Church has had many grievous sins and shortcomings, yet never at any time has it wholly abandoned its mission to evangelise the nations.

And this is one of the reasons why God has also never abandoned the Church.

FLIGHT. Lieut. W. F. Murray, who has been attached to Kai Tak Aerodrome for the past 2½ years, and who is extremely popular in local Service circles, leaves the Colony to-day for England, accompanied by Mrs. Murray. Their many friends will regret to learn that they will not be returning to the Colony.

Mr. K. Konishi, a member of the Japanese Diet, is now on a visit to the Colony with the Japanese Parliamentary party which includes Messrs. K. Nishimura, K. Nakai, M. Kinoshita, H. Yamaguchi and T. Bando, the last named being the secretary of the party. They are staying at the Gloucester Hotel.

Miss Peggy McCaw, the well-known local lady hockey and badminton player, will leave the Colony to-day for a short holiday in Tsingtao and Japan. She will be away for about a month.

Among those who have just returned to the Colony from their summer vacation is Miss Noreen Cooper of the local offices of the Asiatic Petroleum Company. Like so many local residents, Miss Cooper chose Japan as the ideal holiday resort.

It is understood that the Misses M. Westcott and A. Blanchett, both on the staff of St. Stephen's Girls' College, will be leaving to-morrow for a holiday on Lantau Island, where they will be the guests of Mr. H. Smyth at the missionary camp.

Miss Vivian Blackburn and Miss Evelyn O'Hagan, both of whom are members of the staff of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., Ltd., left the Colony recently on the s.s. Tak Sang for a holiday in Tsingtao. They will be away for about a month.

MISS Florence Tong gave a very enjoyable party at the Repulse Bay Lido last Sunday, when a large number of friends, including her sisters Julia and Ada, Mr. and Mrs. T. Chanatong, the Misses Lee, Messrs. Leung, Tsang, D. M. Khan and A. H. Ismail attended. Tiffin, tea and dinner were taken at this popular resort and the party broke up at about 11 p.m.

Miss Anne McDonnell, who hails from Florence, Massachusetts, paid a brief visit to the Colony last week, and during her stay here was the guest of Miss Auriel Friedrich, of the American Consulate-General.

The many friends of Miss Daisy O'Keefe, the well-known local dancing teacher, will be interested to learn that she has just returned from a trip to Java and is looking remarkably fit and well after her holiday.

Mr. A. M. J. Wolynsky, who is connected with the International Assurance Company, has arrived in the Colony, on a business visit, and is staying at the Gloucester Hotel. It is understood that he will be here for about a fortnight.

Mrs. Astrid Hallock, of Chicago, who was formerly a member of the Swedish Olympic swimming team, passed through the Colony on a holiday visit last week, and about the first thing she did on arrival here was to go out to Repulse Bay to enjoy a swim.

Mme. Bourlon, a prominent member of society in Indo-China, is spending a short holiday in the Colony. She arrived here a week ago and will be in the Colony for about a month. Mme. Bourlon is staying at the Gloucester Hotel.

A recent visitor to the Colony was Mrs. Alex Steinberg, of Dallas, Texas, who was very enthusiastic about her stay here. She said that she had visited nearly all the cities in the East but at no place was she more hospitably received.

The many friends of Mr. H. E. Strange will be glad to learn that he is now out of hospital again and so rapid has been his recovery that he is expected to return to his place in the office to-morrow.

Some of the many guests who attended the wedding between Mr. William A. Stewart, prominent local business man and well-known golfer, and Miss Sylvia May Browning, formerly of the Asiatic Petroleum Company Limited, at the Union Church last Thursday afternoon. From left to right in the picture at the right are Mrs. W. L. Alexander, Mr. A. McKellar, Miss E. Thomson, Mr. C. Jackson and Mrs. E. M. Hanlon. ("Herald" photos).

MR. W. A. Stewart was the guest of honour at a very enjoyable party given by members of the Kowloon Golf Club a week ago last Friday when he was the recipient of a present given to him on the occasion of his marriage last Thursday. The party proved a huge success and many members turned up to offer their best wishes to Mr. Stewart.

A very enjoyable dinner, in the shape of a reunion of former members of the Davie Bong Mess, was held at the Gloucester Hotel last Monday night. The Mess, which is now broken up, was perhaps one of the oldest in the Colony, over forty people having passed through it. Amongst those present at the dinner were Messrs. W. A. Stewart, T. Low, D. Black, G. Milne, D. C. Wilson, W. Fleming, N. M. Currie, W. L. Alexander and G. C. Burnett. The opportunity was taken to make a presentation to Mr. Stewart on the occasion of his marriage last Thursday and it was decided to hold a reunion dinner every year.

Mrs. D. O. da Silva and family are amongst the many local residents who are spending the summer at Cheung Chau, that pleasant holiday resort, and are staying at No. 7 House on the Island.

Mrs. Chau Shing-nam, wife of a prominent Chinese resident who was formerly an official in the Chinese Government service. (King's Studio).

Milne, the Best Man, Miss Anne Parks, Bridesmaid, Mr. W. A. Stewart and Miss Sylvia Browning, Mr. J. Grant, Mrs. A. D. Kelman, the Matron of Honour, and Mr. N. M. Currie, who gave the bride away. ("Herald" photo).

MR. V. M. Haimovitch, the popular Shanghai jockey, is now on a business visit to the Colony, having come here to open a branch office of the China Cotton and Yarn Company. He will be here till about the middle of September and is staying at the Gloucester Hotel.

Mr. G. C. Humphreys, who is on the staff of the Asiatic Petroleum Company, paid a short visit to the Colony last week, but has since left.

Mr. S. F. Balfour has just returned to the Colony from a five-week vacation in Yunnanfu and is looking very well after his respite from work. Since his return to the Colony, however, he has resumed duties as Police Magistrate.

Mrs. Bentley, wife of Capt. E. Bentley, of the s.s. On Lee, will be coming here to join her husband sometime in September. Mrs. Bentley, who is at present in Australia with her three children, has never been in the Colony before.

Mr. J. R. Paton, the popular manager of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, has been away from the office for the past week. He is a patient in the War Memorial Hospital, suffering from an attack of influenza.

A happy group of charming visitors snapped on the Roof Garden of the Hong Kong Hotel. They are, from left to right, Mrs. Astrid Hallock, former Swedish Olympic swimming champion, Miss Anne McDonnell and Mrs. Alex Steinberg, two visitors from America, and Miss Auriel Friedrich of the American Consulate-General in Hong Kong. (King's Studio).

MRS. Lossius, wife of Capt. I. J. Lossius, who is one of the oldest foreign residents in the Colony and certainly the oldest foreign resident in Cheung Chau, celebrated her 81st birthday yesterday when she was the recipient of the congratulations of her many friends.

Members of the staff of the Government Medical Department held a very enjoyable Chinese dinner party at one of the restaurants at West Point last Wednesday night, the party consisting of about ten people. Mr. Un Hak-yuen making a very efficient organizer. The party broke up at about 11 p.m.

Mr. Holland Hutchin, a prominent American business man, who makes an annual trip to the Colony, is here again and, as usual, has taken rooms at the Hong Kong Hotel. It is understood that he will be here for at least another ten days or a fortnight.

There was a large crowd of friends on board the s.s. Nellore last Wednesday to say goodbye and bon voyage to Mr. E. F. ("Bob") Selk, the popular assistant secretary of the Y. M. C. A. who has relinquished his post in order to return to Australia.

Mr. W. H. G. Hirst, the popular clerk to the Chief Justice at the Supreme Court, will be leaving the Colony shortly for a month's holiday in Japan. During his absence his duties will be taken over by Mr. H. F. Westlake, jr., who is also on the staff at the Supreme Court.

Mr. Dost Mohamed Khan, who is on the staff of the Government Medical Department, will be going on long leave in the autumn, having booked his passage on the s.s. Santhia, which is due to sail on October 10. Mr. Khan will spend his leave in his native Peshawar and will return to the Colony in June next year.

Mr. J. I. Barnes, assistant secretary of the Government Medical Department, is at present on casual leave and is spending his holidays in the Colony. It is understood that he has moved up to the Peak.

Mr. M. A. Khan, who is on the staff at Queen's College, gave a very enjoyable dinner at his residence on Tai Hang Hill recently when members of the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club "C" team, of which he is a member, were the guests of honour.

Mr. P. C. Frost, the well-known local cricketer and Rugby football player, who is on the staff of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, will be leaving the Colony on the 16th inst. for a holiday in Japan. It is understood that he will be away for about a month.

Mr. P. E. Baskott, of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company, who went away for a holiday in Japan about a month ago, following a bout of illness, arrived back in the Colony last week, looking very hale and hearty after his leave.

Mr. and Mrs. Jankelvitich are another two visitors who have chosen Hong Kong as the ideal holiday resort. Mr. Jankelvitich is in the French Consular Service and they expect to be here for only a short period. They have made the Gloucester Hotel their home.

After an absence of about nine months, Mr. J. Fraser returned to the Colony by the s.s. Rajputana from Home leave on Wednesday. He is now acting Crown Solicitor, during the absence, on leave, of Mr. T. M. Hazellrigg, who went away on Thursday for a holiday in the North. It is understood that Mr. Hazellrigg will shortly be leaving the Colony on retirement.

Mr. M. Marcus, the manager of the Shanghai offices of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of China, arrived in the Colony a week ago last Friday and returned to the Northern port last Friday by the s.s. President Hoover. Mr. Marcus's visit here was purely of a business nature and he stayed at the Gloucester Hotel.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance by Esther

BREWER'S BOOKSHOP always has the newest and best. This week, among a host of others, they received "Inside Europe," a sensational work by John Gunther, one of the best-known American journalists in Europe. He travelled over 5,000 miles to write the book and visited every capital he discusses—and they are not few. Its been banned in Germany. Then there's "The Weather in the Streets," by Rosamond Lehmann, that young woman with a unique position in modern literature; and "Murder in Mesopotamia," Agatha Christie's new super-detective story.

Autumn! Yes, it's actually time to begin thinking about it! And PAUL RENNET'S are offering you a marvellous choice of early Autumn ensembles already. Smart, smart and the peak of fashion. Flowing capes are but one fashionable feature well represented. But best of all—their evening frocks. They've just arrived... stiff, swishing taffetas to the softest of clinging crepes. A really lovely selection. The evening coats, whether short or three-quarter length, are all wonderfully smart. They're in moire or shirred velvet or the latest quilted material. Be sure to see them!

Have you ever looked into your mirror and sighed... and then begun to dream how lovely it would be to visit Elizabeth Arden in Old Bond Street? Well, no need to dream any longer—LANE, CRAWFORD has brought Old Bond Street right to the heart of Hong Kong. Yes, all those perfect Elizabeth Arden beauty preparations are to be had right here! They have some of the most exotic perfumes, too. Chanel's "Cuir de Russie," Lavin's "My Sin," and "Scandal," and a selection of Worth's. A real land of women's enchantment. Are you taking your share of it?

Would you like a new face...? I bet you there are thousands of women who would... Those are the ones spending half of their husbands' earnings on gilded boxes and crystal bottles. But others just smile into their mirrors and know that they are beautiful... those are the women with plain common sense... they use MMI Hollywood beauty aids. They have no money to waste and know that what is in the jar does the trick. Recommended by your favourite film-stars. From the Wing On Co., Ltd., Harim Silk Store, Kowloon, and Miss Naylor's, St. George's Building.

"Sales do get tiresome... and we would not be surprised if you're sick and tired of the very word 'sale,' but there's no other word to tell you the amazing things that are going on at DOLLY VARDEN'S—that super, super shop! Every single summer garment in stock has been so slashed in price that next to nothing will buy you practically anything you want from grand spectators sports frocks, street and sport clothes, to evening dresses that you can put on now and wear smartly well into the Autumn. Better get there fast!

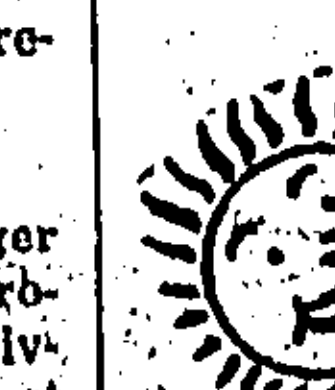

When in this stifling heat you are bothered with perspiration... what can more effectively bring you the illusion of a cool spring breeze than a drop of the finest French perfume? Where can you get the greatest selection of them? The answer, in capital letters, is "GRAND DISPENSARY." You need no introduction to these names: Bourjois, Caron, Molynieux, Roger & Gallet. Names with traditions and a definite meaning to all women in the world. You can get their products at the GRAND DISPENSARY for reasonable prices.

Yep! If you have ever been to America you know the famous hot-cakes... and you know the origin of the saying: "... going like hot-cakes!" I am sure that is how the things at MAIZEE'S will be going in the next few weeks. Have you ever heard of such a thing? With at least two more months of summer before us MAIZEE'S are announcing: "All summer frocks and beach things are going at half price for the rest of the hot weather!" You know, that is less than cost price. Incredible! My advice is: hurry up before they change their minds!

Have you got that end-of-the-season-coming feeling? When you have worn already all your hats so often that everybody knows you from a mile... and still plenty of warm weather ahead of us! You would like to have another hat but not the "sale" kind... something new and refreshing... something which will chase that nostalgia away. And the price must not upset your autumn budget either. Well, if that is your problem, go quickly to MAYO'S SHOPPE there is never an off season. They always have something new, something to delight in.

Can you imagine a person, with sunburn calling the fire department?... You think it is ridiculous?... Well, it is just as ridiculous to go about with inflamed skin, blisters and whatnot... and peeling afterward like a badly-painted wall... Why, by now every child in town must know about NOXZEMA! If you wish to enjoy your picnics and beach parties without after effects, buy NOXZEMA. It has so many other uses that it is a real blessing in the home. For burns and bruises, chafing, baby rash, etc. All leading Dispensaries sell it. Sole Distributors: United Traders, Pedder Bldg.

THRILLING FINISH TO 400 METRES

BROWN NEARLY CAUSES SENSATION

CHINESE BASKETBALL TEAM FAIL SURPRISINGLY AGAINST JAPANESE

Berlin, Yesterday.
Percy Williams, of the United States, yesterday won the final of the 400 Metres event in 46 5-10 secs., Great Britain securing second place through A. G. K. Brown (Warwick School and Cambridge University), who clocked 46 7-10 secs. Lu Valle (U.S.) was third in 46 8-10 secs.

The race was very closely contested and the first three almost breasted the tape simultaneously. Roberts (Great Britain), Loaring (Canada) and Fritz (Canada) came fourth, fifth and sixth respectively.

About 30 yards from home Williams seemed to be a certain winner, but Brown, Roberts and Lu Valle offered very strong challenges in a final effort, Williams winning by only a narrow margin. The weather was fine and warm.

Towns won this trial by a terrific burst of speed over the last three hurdles, when he was threatened with being ousted from the finals.

Peter Flick, above, of the New York Athletic Club, yesterday broke the Olympic record for the 100 Metres free-style by 3-10 seconds, when he clocked 57 7-10 seconds in one of the elimination heats, but Taguchi (Japan) clocked 57 5-10 secs. in another heat.

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

The Olympic Target Shooting event decided yesterday was won by Ullmann (Sweden) with 559 points, leading Krempel (Germany) with 544 and Jamondere (France) with 540. The performance of the winner actually constitutes a new world record, but it is unlikely to be recognised as such.

The next places went to Bonin (France), Vartiovara (Finland), Jones (U.S.), Mueller (Chile) and Lalanne (Chile) in the order named.

The American Archie Williams won the final of the 400 Metres in 46.5 seconds, while A. G. K. Brown (Britain) finished second in 46.7 and another American, Lu Valle, was third in 46.8. The next three places went to Roberts (Britain), Loaring (Canada) and Fritz (Canada) in the order named.

The winner's time exceeds the world and Olympic records, which both stand at 46.2, by three fifths of a second.

CLARK LEADS FIELD
Clark (U.S.) leads the world's best all-round athletes with a total of 4,194 points in the Olympic Decathlon after the conclusion of the first five exercises (100 Metres race, the Broad Jump, the Shot Put, the High Jump and the 400 Metres) yesterday, with two other Americans, Glenn Morris with a total of 4,192 and Jack Parker with 3,888 second and third respectively. The next places are now held by Brasser (Holland) with 3,873, Jaervinen (Finland) with 3,787, Guhl (Switzerland) with 3,769 and Tolamo (Finland).

In view of yesterday's results in the first five events in the Decathlon it is highly probable that the contest, which is universally regarded as one of the most important events in the Olympiad, since it determines the best all-round athlete, will eventually be won by America. The five events still outstanding will be decided today.

SWEDISH WIN
The victory in the Collapsible Canoe Double competition went to Johnson and Bladstroem (Sweden), who won from Horn and Hansch (Germany) and P. and J. Wijdekoop (Holland).

The other two canoeing events were won by Austria and Czechoslovakia respectively, namely, the Collapsible Canoe Single by the Austrian Hradetzky from the Frenchman Eberhard and the German Hoermann, and the Canadian Double by the Czechs Mottl and Skridlent, leading the Canadians Sakar and Charters and the Austrians Weinstebl and Proisl.

the British players by a score of 11 goals to nil, was witnessed by nearly 100,000 spectators, which is a record for attendance at a polo match in Germany, where the game is relatively little played. The large crowd which had assembled in the Olympic Polo Stadium was not disappointed, for the game was exceedingly fast and the players on both sides were evidently giving of their best.

The Argentinians clearly had the advantage of better and speedier ponies, and this fact probably decided the issue. The stickwork of the British players was quite up to the mark, but they were frequently outdistanced by their adversaries.

HOW GOALS WERE SCORED
The Argentinians scored, but one goal each in the first two chukkers, but in the fourth chukker they sent the ball in four times. In the sixth chukker the Argentinians scored another goal and in the seventh and eighth chukkers two goals each.

The players on the British side were Captain Fowler, Captain Hinde, Captain Dawny and Captain Guinness, while the members of the Argentinian team were Luis Duggan, Roberto Cavanagh, Andres Gazoti and Manuel Andradra.

WINNERS OF MEDALS
The number of gold, silver and bronze medals, in that order, won by the various nations in the Olympic Games so far is as follows:—

United States: 13, 9, 4.
Germany: 11, 11, 9.
Finland: 3, 4, 4.
Sweden: 3, 1, 5.
Italy: 3, 1, 4.
Hungary: 3, 0, 0.
France: 2, 3, 2.
Egypt: 2, 1, 2.
Austria: 1, 3, 2.
Great Britain: 1, 3, 0.
Japan: 1, 2, 2.
Czechoslovakia: 1, 2, 0.
Estonia: 1, 1, 1.
Argentina: 1, 0, 1.
New Zealand: 1, 0, 0.
Canada: 0, 2, 3.
Poland: 0, 2, 1.
Holland: 0, 1, 3.
Switzerland: 0, 1, 0.
Latvia, Turkey, the Philippines and Australia: Each 0, 0, 1.

GERMAN CYCLING WIN
The first cycling event in the Olympiad was decided yesterday, namely, the 1,000-Metres scratch race, which was won by Merckens (Germany) from Ohet (Holland) 48.31 metres record of Gisela Mauermayer (Munich) in the Discus Throw, and the record time of 46.5 secs. in the 400-Metres relay established in Cologne by the German team.

Statistical Reports Issued

LEAGUE HELP FOR STATES IN CENTRAL EUROPE

London, Yesterday.

The new edition of the Statistical Year-book for 1935-1936 has just been published by the League Secretariat. Like the preceding editions it surveys the most important population, economic, financial and social features. The statistical tables are compiled to the end of 1935 and in some cases, cover the first quarter of 1936. The figures are presented in a manner to facilitate comparison between countries, particularly regarding the following subjects: Area, population, labour conditions, production, trade, international balances of payments, transport, public finance, banking and monetary questions, and wholesale and retail prices.

C. European Finance

The League Secretariat has just issued (1), the 19th quarterly report of the League representative in Austria on the budgetary, banking, financial and economic situation there during the second quarter of 1936; (2), the 39th report of the League Commissioner in Bulgaria regarding the economic and financial situation during the period March to May 1936; (3), the 19th report of the Financial Committee's representative in Hungary, regarding the second quarter of 1936.

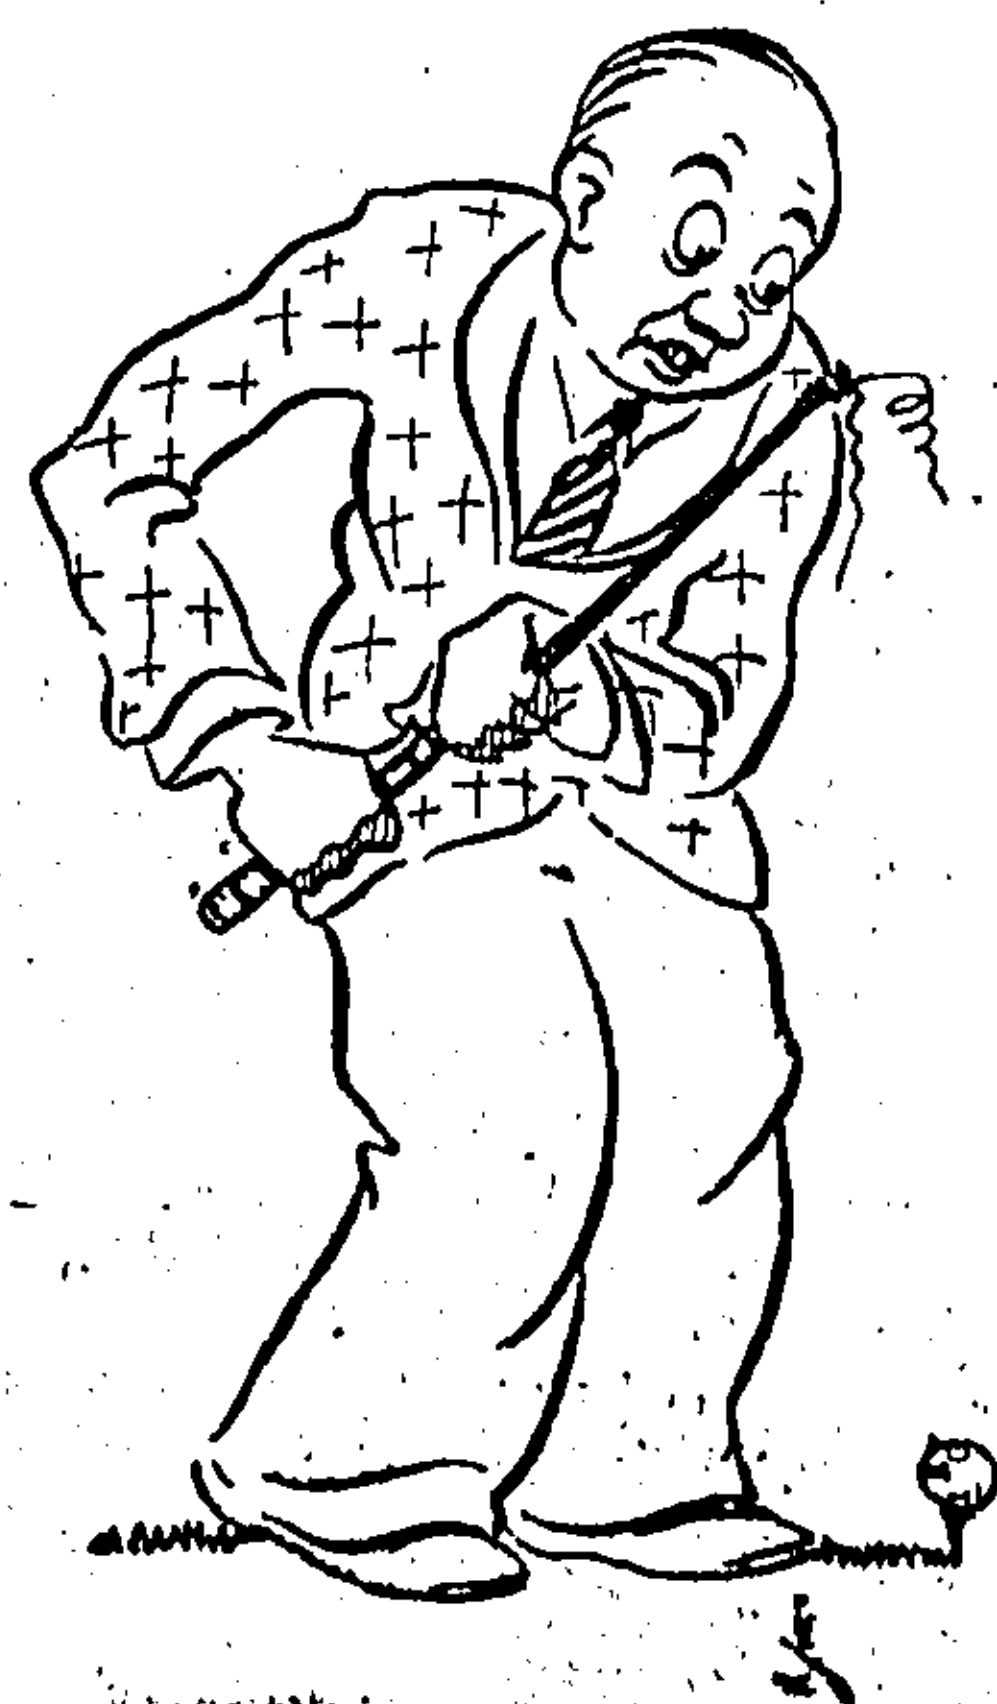

The Financial Committee will examine the three reports during the session in September in order to make the usual report to the League Council on the action undertaken in Austria, Bulgaria and Hungary to improve their finances with League assistance.

Health Organisation
The second quarterly bulletin, 1936, of the League's health organisation, recently issued, contains notably studies on the relationship to rural hygiene of the campaigns against the common fly and the reports of the entomologists convened by the health organisation to study the problems of rheumatism, malaria and trachoma.—British Wireless Service.

The American team appealed to the judges after the race, asking that victory be disregarded, and have the race run over again. The regulations did not permit this being carried out, however, but the gesture was much appreciated in sporting circles.—Trans-Ocean Service.

WATER-POLO

Chinese Athletic Win 7-0

ENGINEERS OUTCLASSED

A fast and interesting game of water-polo was witnessed at North Point last night, when the Chinese Athletic Association beat the Royal Engineers by seven goals to nil after leading at the interval by five clear goals.

The Chinese were much the faster team and this, to a large extent, was mainly responsible for their large victory. They were, however, the better side all-round, their understanding being excellent, while practically every shot at goal resulted in a score.

The Sappers were too slow in sending their forwards away with the ball from the commencement, and as a result the Chinese defenders were given an opportunity of covering their opponents before the ball came anywhere near them.

Ng Kam Chuen Shines

Ng Kam-chuen, the Athletic's right-back, played a sound game and, despite his lack of speed, often outpaced his man to the ball. He did not waste much time in sending a forward away and was invariably back in position for a clearance, a phase of the game in which the Sappers were sadly lacking in knowledge.

Wong Sun-man, in the Chinese pivotal position, kept a wary eye on Pearce and gave the latter very little rope, while Kwok Chun-hung, the Colony and Interport breast-stroke champion, was in brilliant fettle among the forwards, scoring three good goals.

Slow in Recovery

Lt. Calvert worked very hard in the Sappers' defence, but was no match in speed for the Chinese and on three occasions was unable to recover in time to prevent a score after an R.E. attack had failed.

Pearse and Jordan were not lying up near enough to the opposing goal. Tonkins was a shade too slow as the right-back and had he distributed the ball forward much quicker a score might have resulted towards the closing stages of the opening half.

"Sitter" Missed

The Athletic were presented with a wonderful opening in the first minute of the game when a stray pass found the Chinese with an unmarked man, but Kwok failed to net with his shot.

The Athletic made up for this mistake soon after when Chui netted from an unmarked position following a corner throw.

The Chinese increased their lead through Lo and Kwok scored their third from a breakaway.

The Sappers were then given an opportunity of scoring, but faulty play among the forwards resulted in a clearance which found the Sappers' defence at "sixes-and-sevens" and as a result Chui netted the Athletic's fifth goal.

The second half saw the play more evenly distributed, although the Chinese added two more goals through Kwok and Chui before the final whistle.

VERIDA CAPTURED?

Lisbon: The Spanish insurgent headquarters claim the capture of Verida, 40 miles east of Bajados, thus severing the latter town from Madrid.

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS

Madrid: The Government claim to have had the best of the fighting progressing in Sierra Guadarrama, where it is estimated that the insurgents recently lost 3,500 men. They also claim the capture of the town of Sigüenza, near Saragossa. At Valencia the National Labour Federation is assembling a column of 10,000 men.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

ALLEGED MALICIOUS REPORTS

Madrid: In an interview with foreign pressmen the Premier, Senor Giral, made an energetic protest against the "propaganda and lies" broadcast by the radio stations in rebel hands and featured by some sections of the foreign press, according to which the Spanish Government was represented as a Red Government. The Spanish Cabinet, declared Senor Giral, did not contain a single Socialist or Communist. It was certainly the Socialists and Communists, continued the Premier, who, together with the whole working class in Spain, had rescued the country from a "barbarous attack."

Senor Giral further denied that the property of foreigners had been damaged, the protection of the lives and property of foreigners.

THREE PEOPLE DROWNED

Ferry-Boat Tragedy In Canton

CRAFT OVERTURNED BY WASH FROM PASSING LAUNCH

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Three persons were drowned in Canton harbour off Tai Ping Road when a ferry boat capsized yesterday afternoon, as the result of the wash from a passing launch.

There were nine passengers on board, including the boatman, who is a mere youth and who was not strong enough to manoeuvre the boat during the wash.

One body was recovered this morning. Two people are missing, and it is believed that they have been drowned. Six persons were saved by nearby boats and a police craft.

Owing to heavy rain, the Pearl River is running swiftly and is dangerous for the navigation of small craft. The North River and West River are rising, and the flood finds its way to the sea via Canton.

GERMANS EVACUATED

Berlin: The steamer Monte Sarmiento, which belong to the "Strength Through Joy" movement and is normally used for vacation cruises for German workers, has left for Lisbon to take over German fugitives from Spain. The steamer is expected to provide quarters for about 2,000 fugitives.

Although several ocean cruises planned by the "Strength Through Joy" organisation had to be cancelled owing to the Monte Sarmiento's departure for Lisbon, the numerous German workers affected by the measure notified the organisation that they heartily approved of the step, taken for the rescue of their threatened compatriots.—Trans-Ocean Service.

UNRELIABLE REPORTS

Hendaye: Reports broadcast by the Government station at Madrid are often not in keeping with the facts, according to the correspondents of American and British newspapers who have arrived here from Spain.

It is reported that a plane left Rome yesterday morning for Marlenbad, from where the inmates of the machine intended to proceed to Koenigsburgh Castle, belonging to Prince Meternich, where ex-King Alfonso of Spain is now living. The pilot, however, lost his bearings and was hence forced to land at Pilsen. The other inmates of the plane left Pilsen immediately by car for Koenigsburgh Castle.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITISH WARNING

British warships will patrol the Straits of Gibraltar to protect British shipping from interference, and it is made clear that there must be no firing in future on British ships. This is the renewal of similar warnings that have been given, and General Franco has moreover been informed that if military aircraft fly over Gibraltar they will be warned by the firing of three rounds in advance of the machine, and if this warning is not effective, the fire will be directed at the aircraft.

EASTERN SURPRISE AMERICANS

FINE RALLY WHEN FOUR RUNS DOWN

THOMPSON'S WITHDRAWAL CHANGES WHOLE COMPLEXION OF GAME

EASTERN created a big surprise yesterday at Causeway Bay when they beat a strong American team, which included four of the outstanding players of the Canadian team, by 10 runs to 5 after nine innings in the Baseball League. Eastern were actually led in the seventh innings by four runs!

Thompson, who had umpired the first game, was affected by the heat and, though he started pitching for the Americans, had to be relieved in the sixth innings and left the field for good in the eighth innings.

VOLUNTEERS OUTPLAYED BY CHINESE

Moe Shows Great Form On The Mound

WINNERS' BATTERS CHOOSE THE RIGHT BALLS

The Overseas Chinese did not have much difficulty in defeating the Volunteers in their League Baseball encounter at Causeway Bay yesterday, winning by 11 runs to 1.

The Chinese threw all they knew into the game and in consequence had the Volunteers beaten every time in tight play and, as the result of their abilities to place a ball with a bunt, scored many runs.

Moe returned to form yesterday when he pitched the entire game and had the Volunteers literally eating out of his hand, the latter failing to show their usual form at batting and only registering two scattered hits.

Expensive Errors

The Volunteers were guilty of several expensive errors, and D. Leonard, the short-stop, generally the most reliable of the team, was erratic.

Bowen had a hard day, as he was against a side that chose his deliveries very carefully, causing him to pitch more than the usual number of balls, while the short hits of the Chinese kept him all ways on the move.

Wing-Lee returned to his side as catcher, but was over-anxious in tagging men at the home plate, with the result that he dropped the ball twice.

The rest of the team played their usual game but, being up against a superior side, did not have a chance to shine. Pereira, in the left field, held several high flies, while Sa on the other flank, brought off a neat catch in the sixth innings.

JAPANESE AQUATIC STARS SET RECORDS

The Americans hold a substantial lead in the Decathlon, following the sixth exercise, the 110 Metres Hurdles, which took place this morning at the Olympic Stadium in the presence of 60,000 spectators.

The best time was achieved by the world record holder in the Decathlon, Glen Morris (United States), in 14.9 seconds, for which he gained 946 points. Parker (United States) came in second, winning 929 points, Guhl (Switzerland) was third for a total of 913 points, Clark (United States) was fourth with 818 points, Huber (Germany) was fifth with 804 points and Binet (Belgium) was sixth with 776 points.

At the end of the six exercises Morris leads with a total of 5,183 points, followed by Clark (5,012), Parker (4,817), Brasser (Holland) (4,622), Guhl (4,598) and Huber (4,397).

ANOTHER FINNISH WIN Finland again demonstrated her superiority in the long distance track events when she won the first and second places (Gold and Silver medals) in the 5,000 Metres event, through Hoeckert and Lentinen respectively.

The third place was taken by Johnson (Sweden). Hoeckert established a new Olympic record, clocking 14 mins. 22 2-10 secs, while Lentinen and Johnson also both improved on the last Olympic

CHINESE RESIDENT PASSES

Mr. Chow Chi Nam

The death occurred at his residence, No. 6, Leighton Hill Road, shortly after 9 p.m. last night, of Mr. Chow Chi Nam, sub-manager of the Bank of East Asia and a director of the China Emporium Ltd.

The deceased was a brother of the Hon. Sir Shou-son Chow and was a very well respected member of the Chinese community. He leaves a grandson and granddaughter, to whom the deep sympathy of a large circle of friends will be extended.

The other Finnish hope, Sabrinen, lost all chance of being placed by falling 600 metres before the finishing tape.

Chinese Relay Team Out Of Luck

Berlin: In their heat in the 400 Metres Relay China, represented by Poh, Wong, Chen and Lui, were always trailing in the rear and finished last, the heat winner being Holland who clocked 41 8-10 secs. or 1 8-10 secs. off the world's record held by the United States and established on May 9, 1931, in America.

FINNS AGAIN SUCCEED

Finland secured another outstanding triumph in the distance events when she won the first and second places in the 3,000 Metres event, Ischollo establishing a new Olympic record of 9 mins. 8 8-10 secs., while another Finnish athlete, Tuominen, was second in 9 mins. 6 8-10 secs. Germany secured third place through Dompert, who clocked 9 mins. 7 2-10 secs.—Reuter.

EMPEROR'S FLIGHT TO ISLAND

ABERDEEN HOME OF THE PIRATE GANGS

FORTIFIED HEADQUARTERS BUILT ON VICTORIA PEAK

(By Phyllis Juby)

SMALL as a dot in the ocean, Hong Kong has come to be called the Malta and Gibraltar of the Pacific! Yet previous to its cession to Britain the very name of the island was unknown to the statesmen of China. It was never accorded special notice either in the political or the social records of China, the Empire to which it belonged. To-day Hong Kong is a place of refuge for the oppressed in China; it has been so since the first dawning of its known history. The Hakkas ill-treated by the Puntis, the Puntis and Tan-ka people weary of the yoke of mandarins, as well as the Chinese Emperor fleeing before the ruthless Tartar invaders, the industrious Chinese settlers as well as the roving pirate have all turned to passed through the Lyemun channel into the waters of Hong Kong and landed on the Kowloon peninsula. Tradition says that Kowloon City was not in existence at the time and that the Imperial troops were encamped for a while on the hill now marked by the inscription, whilst the Court lodged in a roughly constructed wooden palace erected at a short distance from the beach—at a place now marked by a temple. There the last Emperor of the Sung resided for a time awaiting news from Canton and feeding on vain hopes. Disappointed, he sailed westwards to Nanshan.

Meanwhile the Mongols, had taken possession of Canton and hastily organised a fleet with which they hemmed in the Imperial boats on all sides. The Prime Minister, seeing that all was lost, took the youthful Emperor on his back and jumped into the sea.

Pirate Haunt

Tradition states as well that through all the reigns following the downfall of the Sung, Hong Kong was a haunt of pirates. The bay of Shaokwan and the bay of Aberdeen were specially dreaded by peaceful traders. These pirates, it is said, were generally engaged in fishing, whilst men stationed on the hills kept a look-out for merchant vessels. It was this piratical disposition of the fishermen of the neighbourhood of Hong Kong that caused the early Portuguese navigators to give these islands the general name Ladrões.

During the Ming Dynasty, Kowloon and Hong Kong began to be peopled by peaceful and industrious settlers from the neighbourhood of Tung-koon district. The pirates had confined their robbing to the regular levy of a small fee, willingly paid by junks benefiting by the short cut offered by the Lyemun and Lamma channels or by the comparatively safe anchorage which some of the bays of Hong Kong offered in case of an approaching typhoon. The new settlers, speaking the Cantonese dialect, were called Puntis (lit. Aborigines).

Two Different Tribes
These Puntis, after denuding the hillsides of all available timber or firewood, took possession of all the arable ground to be found in the territory now comprising our Colony. Numerous hamlets sprang up both on the mainland and on the island. And a number of families of the Tong clan became so powerful as to look upon themselves as the owners of the island.

Some time after these Puntis had occupied the best portions of Kowloon and Hong Kong, settlers from the north-east of Kwangtung, speaking a different dialect, called Hakkas (lit. Strangers), began to find their way into the Puntis settlements. They cut grass for fuel, cultivated vegetable fields on hilly or swampy ground neglected by the Puntis, started granite quarries, or worked in the Puntis villages as blacksmiths or barbers.

Of these two tribes, so different in customs and manners and speaking a different language, the Puntis were the more intelligent, active and cunning, becoming the dominant race, whilst the Hakkas, good-natured, industrious, honest, served as hewers of wood and stone and drawers of water. From the first advent of the British and all through the wars with China, the Puntis were as a rule the enemies and the Hakkas the friends of the foreigner.

Seafaring Natives
Still later, a third class of natives, speaking the Swatow dialect, settled here. These people

PROMISE OF PERFECTION

She sat back on her heels and let her hands lie in her lap. When the grass was cut and the bird-bath straightened—Oh, but all this was probably an impossible dream! This garden might become only a memory, with herself wandering in it like a lost shade. Her shoulders drooped.

And it was so that Bill found her. Mrs. Biddle having told him that Ellen had gone for a walk, he had not set out in search of her. But he had not seen her, and he had about decided to turn back when he saw a house. It made him stop short in the road.

It wasn't an unusual house at all—not very big, not any particular style of architecture. But solid, and strong, and roomy-looking. Big windows and a verandah. Lots of space around it. Trees. A gate that invited you in, and up the flagged walk and the shallow steps to the door. It wouldn't hurt to look around a bit.

He tried the door and it opened. He saw Ellen from an upstairs window. She looked so little sitting there, so relaxed, almost as if she were asleep and dreaming. He put the thought of the house behind him and went down to her, surprised and shaken at what the sight of her did to him.

She jumped up, startled. How pretty she was, with her flushed cheeks and her wide eyes and the sunlight sifting down on her nut-brown hair! Like the Ellen he had married.

"I came up just as soon as I could," he said, holding both her hands. "El, what did you mean? What have you decided?"

It was hard to tell him. She had never dreamed it would be so hard. To make it easier, she pulled her hands away, but his eyes were fastened on hers and she could not avoid them. In spite of herself, her voice faltered.

"But, you know yourself, Bill, we just couldn't go on as we were. It was dreadful; we weren't ourselves."

Her breath coming faster and faster, she told him what she had decided. That she would get a divorce, and they must both try to generally called Hoklos, were all seafaring men, bolder in character than either the Puntis or the Hakkas, and specially addicted to smuggling and piracy. They were dreaded more than other pirates on the coast since their deeds were of so ferocious and daring a character. In later years these Hoklos supplied the crews of nearly all the salt smuggling and opium smuggling boats.

After the downfall of the Ming Dynasty in A.D. 1628, the scattered remnants of the Ming army took refuge on this island. Thereupon the Emperor Kanghi issued an edict cancelling all leases issued for Hong Kong and calling upon all loyal subjects of the Manchu Dynasty to withdraw themselves and all supplies of provisions from the island, until all the rebels were starved out and exterminated. This the loyal subjects promptly did; Puntis and Hakkas left the island until the rebels had been dislodged and order restored. Then, once more, they returned, their licences renewed.

The only other tale Chinese tradition has to tell with our magic island for its setting, is of a pirate called Chang Pao, who, at the beginning of the last century formed a look-out and fortified headquarters on Victoria Peak. Chang Pao was famous in popular local history for his daring exploits, until, having conquered several districts bordering on the Canton River, he suddenly entered the service of the Viceroy!

start their lives over again. "And if you could let me have a—ahundred and ten a month, why, with what I have—"

His face showed how stunned he was. Oh, he mustn't think her mercenary, greedy!

"You see, Bill, I've found the place where I want to live. Where I can build myself up again. It'll take close planning and working, but that's what I need. I like to work, to work toward something. I've never had enough to do since we married; that was part of the trouble. The place isn't perfect—that's the marvelous part about it—but it gives—it gives the promise of perfection, and as soon as I saw the house—"

He stared at her. "The house?" She swept her hand in a circle. "Yes. Maybe you don't see it, but I can visualize just what I want to do. It'll grow, and so will I."

"This house?" he cried, startled. But he wanted this house! He had known it the moment he saw it; he was sure of it while he walked through it, thinking, with a quickened heartbeat, of how it could be manned.

They were staring at each other. "Do you mean—you want to live here?" he asked.

"Yes," she said. And then, with an effort, as if turning her back on a dream. "But if you can't manage it—you can't, that's all. Perhaps it was a crazy idea. In the first place, but I can't help it. I felt as if I'd found an answer to—something, when I found this house and this garden."

Suddenly he took her by the shoulders. "El—El, I wanted to live here, too!"

"You?" she cried. "Here?" "I wanted to live in this house," he said again, on a stronger note. "But not alone, El. With you."

"But I—" "That's what's been the matter with us. We needed—what did you call it?—something that has the promise of perfection to work for. Something that's our own."

She looked at him. It was the face she had known and loved come back to her again; his eyes were lit with hope and a shy ardour. In a wave of self-pity, she thought how narrowly she had come to missing this. It had been so sudden, all this resolving of their problems, that she still could not believe it, but she had the deep conviction that they had stumbled on the truth, each in their own way.

"El," he said pleadingly, "say it. Say we shall live here together."

The house called them both, and they walked toward it arm in arm. "It's not very big, is it, after all?" he demanded, surveying it with pride. "But more than big enough for the two of us."

"Yes," she said, out of a happy silence. "Even, perhaps, in time, big enough for three of us."

$50,000 SCHEME TO IMPROVE HOVE

New Police Buildings

Following Brighton's proposal to spend $50,000 on a new town hall on the front, the adjacent town of Hove is now considering a $50,000 improvement scheme for its municipal buildings. The Town Council has approved the spending of $30,000 on town hall reconstruction and $20,000 to provide more modern police headquarters.

Police accommodation in both Brighton and Hove has been described as "hopelessly inadequate."

The proposals of both towns are being strenuously opposed on the grounds that they are "sheer waste of money."

BRIDGE NOTE

SECOND ASKING BIDS

(By Dr. MELVILLE SMITH.)

LAST week I began an examination of the new Asking Bid, in the hope and expectation that I could present them in simple form. I described how the trump suit is established after opening bids of One; also the first Asking bid and responses. I pointed out that the comprehensive question of a first Asking bid is really (1) Have you at least the Ace of the Asked suit; or, failing that, (2) Have you at least one Ace outside, plus the second-round control of the Asked suit; and (3) If you have either (1) or (2), what other Ace or Aces have you got?

Note that a positive response is a complete answer.

(1) A raise in the Asked suit shows its Ace. The negative inference is that the responder holds no other Ace.

(2) By bidding a suit other than the Asking suit, the responder shows that he has second-round control of the Asked suit plus the Ace of the response suit. The negative inference is that the responder holds no other Ace.

(3) A No-Trumps response shows either (1) or (2) plus one more Ace; two Aces altogether. A Jump No-Trumps response shows either (1) or (2) plus two other Aces; three Aces altogether.

When the responding hand has neither (1) nor (2) he must reply by bidding the trump suit:
S, 1S; N, 3S;
4C7; 4S

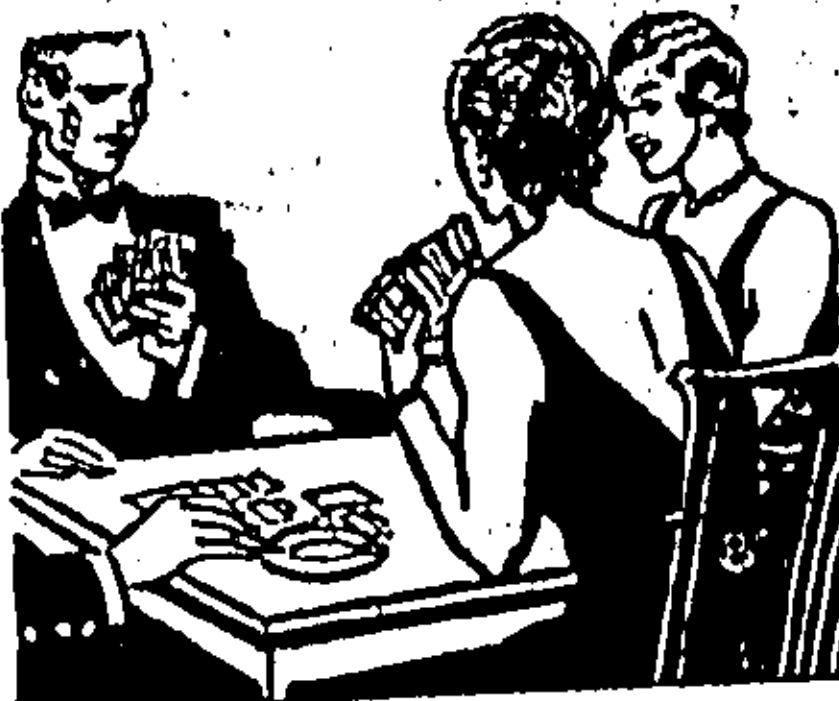

This is called signing off.
Suit Controls

Suit controls are:
First Round: An Ace; or a void with at least three trumps. A void may be shown by bidding its suit when such response is indicated; but it may not be shown when the hand contains an Ace or Aces.
Second Round: A singleton; the King with one or more guards.
Third Round: A singleton; Kx; K-Q with one or more guards; any doubleton.
An A Q includes third-round control but not second.

In the examples which follow, the trump suit is underlined and the Asking bid is queried.
Responses are Logical
We now come to the second Asking bid and responses after an opening bid of One of a suit. After the first Asking bid and the response, any further bid in a new suit is an Asking bid.

A sign-off is always made by bidding the trump suit just sufficiently.
A second Asking bid may be made after the negative response of a sign-off; or after a positive response; and if you bear in mind that distinction you will find that the responses are logical instead of complicated.

After Partner Signs Off
Obviously the situation so far as Aces are concerned has not been shown. The sign-off denies two things; it denies the Ace of the Asked suit; and it denies second-round control of the Asked suit plus an Ace.

Thus:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S.

Now it is clear, without giving any examples, that the sign-off might have second-round control without any Ace; or he might have one, two or even three Aces without second-round control of the Asked suit. Therefore, unless the Asker is satisfied with the sign-off, he makes a second Asking bid in another suit or the same suit.

In a new suit:

(a) After a sign-off, this second Asking bid is just the same as a first Asking bid, and the responses are, of course, the same. (The responses were given and explained last Sunday). That is quite logical, and dispels one of the so-called complications.
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S;
S, 5D7; N, 5H.

Five Hearts shows second-round control of Diamonds plus Ace of Hearts.

If in the same suit:
(b) Holding second-round control of the Asked suit, responder bids No-Trumps:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S;

S, 5S7; N, 5NT.
North cannot hold the Ace of Clubs or he would have bid Five Clubs over Four Clubs. He cannot hold any other Ace or, he would have bid the Ace suit over Four Clubs. For example, North might have:
S-Q J x x H-K Q J D-K x C-K x x x.

(c) Holding only third-round control of the suit, plus an outside Ace, responder bids the Ace suit:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S;
S, 5C7; N, 5H.
S-Q J x x H-A x x x D-K Q J C-x x x.

North holds third-round control of Clubs with his doubleton, plus Ace of Hearts. North cannot hold second-round control of Clubs and Ace of Hearts or he would have bid Four Hearts over Four Clubs.
Note that North may have an Ace outside the Asked suit without even third-round control of the repeated suit, in which case he must sign off again:

S-Q J x x H-A x D-K Q J C-x x x
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S;

S, 5C7; N, 5S;
but if partner only wanted to find out about an Ace or Aces, he could inquire by making use of the Four-Five No-Trumps convention instead of making a second Asking bid:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4S;

S, 4NT; N, 5H.

After Positive Response
After a positive response to a first Asking bid, the situation in Aces has already been shown, and that is the important point to remember.

In a new suit:
(d) A No-Trumps response always shows second-round control of the suit of the second Asking bid:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4H;
S, 5D7; N, 5NT.

In the same suit:
(e) When second-round control has been shown by a positive reply to the first Asking bid, the second Asking bid in the same suit enquires only about third-round control, and if partner has it he bids No-Trumps:
S, 1S; N, 3S; S, 4C7; N, 4H;
S, 5C7; N, 5NT.

South might have such a suit as A x x. He knows he can get rid of one of them by ruffing if North's second-round control is a singleton or K x, but North must sign off with Five Spades if he holds K x x.

Successful slam bidding is not only made easier by Asking bids, but slams which cannot be made can be avoided by their use. Here is a hand I have just received from a correspondent:

S A J x
H J 10 x
D Q x
C A J 9 8 7
N
S
S Q 10 x x
H A K Q 9 x
D A x x
C Q x

The actual bidding was:
N. S.
1C 2H
2NT 3H
4H 4NT
5NT 6H

The hands are not suitable for the Four-Five No-Trumps convention, and the slam could easily have been avoided by an Asking bid.

After the trump suit had been agreed by North's Four Hearts, South should have Asked, by bidding Five Diamonds, if he wanted to test a slam. North should sign off with Five Hearts because he has neither first nor second-round control of Diamonds.

TYPHOON WARNING

A message received by the American Consulate-General from the Manila Observatory yesterday stated that at 3.30 p.m. the typhoon was situated in about longitude 135 E., latitude 11 N., moving west-north-west. This indicates a very slight movement since the previous report.

SALT TAX PROBLEM

SMUGGLING MENACE

Improving Methods Of Collection

MANY PRISONERS RELEASED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
Over 100 prisoners confined in the special detention quarters of the Salt Transportation Revenue Office have either been released or sent to the law courts for a speedy trial, by order of Mr. H. O. Tong, the new Salt Commissioner.

Most of the prisoners have been set free owing to the lack of evidence against them, while many of them were innocent. The prisoners were arrested by the previous regime on charges that they evaded payment of the Salt Tax.

Mr. Tong has reclaimed 10 revenue launches from the provincial preventive service, because they are needed to prevent smuggling of salt in the rivers of Kwangtung. Efficient patrol by these vessels has begun since the present administration was inaugurated.

About 80 employees of the Salt Office who have little work to do have been relieved of their services in the interest of economy.

How to improve the collection of the salt tax in Kwangsi has been planned by Commissioner Tong, and this scheme will be put into effect as soon as it is approved by the Ministry of Finance.

U.S. SENATOR'S SUICIDE

Zioncheck's Last Eccentricity

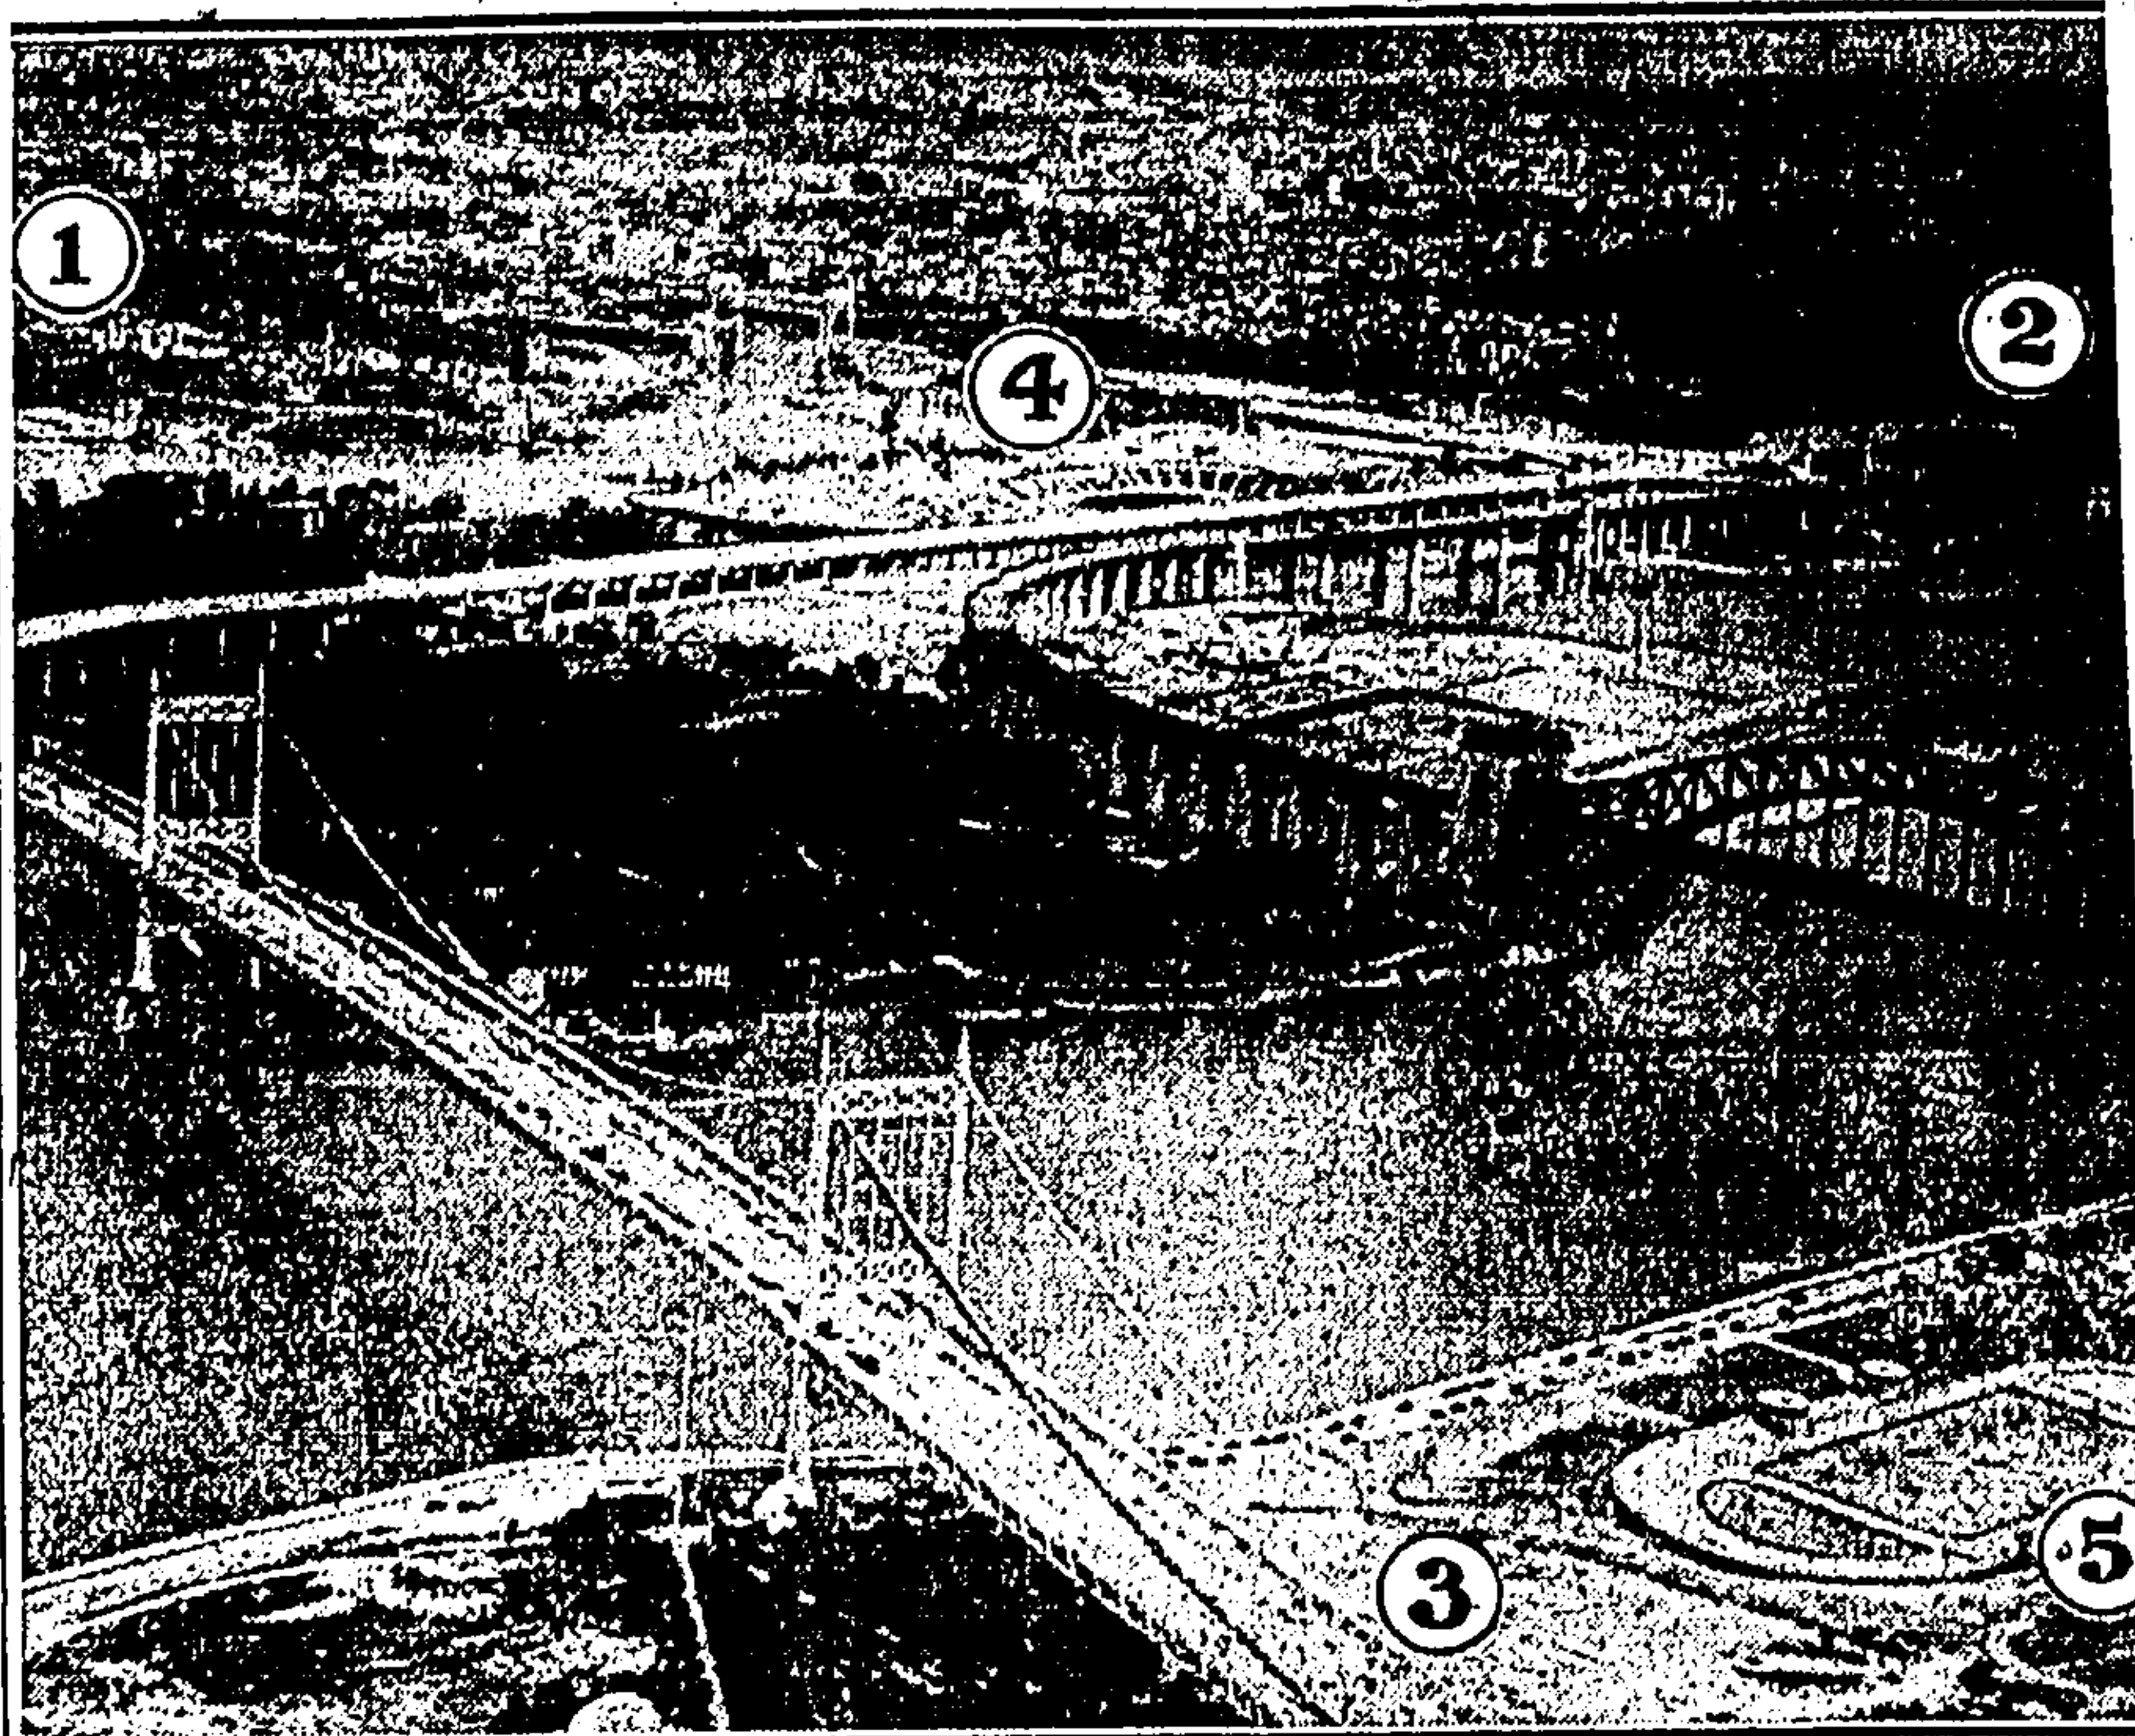

JUMP TO DEATH IN SIGHT OF WIFE

Seattle, Yesterday.
Senator Marion A. Zioncheck, the Democratic representative for Seattle, Washington, has committed suicide by jumping from a fifth floor window in the sight of his wife. — Reuter.

Grave doubts were expressed for Senator Zioncheck's sanity ever since the occasion, a few months ago, when he threw his landlady downstairs, breaking two of her ribs. From that time he was continually in the news, on many occasions being arrested for various petty offences, including speeding in a car along crowded streets. He successfully invoked his Senatorial immunity to avoid arrest in some instances, but was later removed to an asylum for observation. He escaped from here, however, and was apparently allowed to return to his family. This last act writes "Finis" to a chequered and colourful career.

WEATHER REPORT

Pressure is highest to the south and south-east of Japan, and relatively low over China generally. The typhoon is situated more than 200 miles north of Pelew (750 miles east-south-east of Manila) and is moving west-north-west. The local forecast for to-day, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, was east winds, moderate; fair.

The great Tri-Boro bridge (left), which links the New York boroughs Manhattan, Bronx and Queens, is finally a reality after being rushed to completion in record time. (1) The approach from 125th Street, Manhattan. (2) The entrance from the Bronx. (3) The Astoria, Queens, Long Island, approach. (4) The new Municipal stadium, where the American Olympic try-outs were run off. (5) The $1,500,000 Municipal swimming pool. The prodigious engineering feat was accomplished through the use of WPA funds. The railroad bridge over Hell Gate, East River, is shown at the right.

French Neutrality Plan Outlined

NO EXPORT OF WAR MATERIAL TO BE ALLOWED

Berlin: The French Ambassador, M. Francois-Poncet, called on the Foreign Minister, Baron von Neurath, yesterday and handed the latter the French plan of neutrality and non-interference relative to the Spanish civil war.

Paris: The text of the neutrality declaration proposed by France in the Spanish civil war has already been communicated to all the Powers concerned, according to the paper Paris-Soir, which asserts that the contents of the declaration may be summed up as follows:—

"The importation and exportation or transport of war material of any kind—including military, commercial and sports planes—which are destined for Spain, will be prohibited. Deliveries of war materials for Spain which are now going on must cease at once, even if made in fulfilment of orders placed before the outbreak of the civil war. The Powers concerned agree to communicate to each other the measures which they have taken." — Trans-Ocean Service.

GERMAN ASSURANCES

London: The German Embassy has given explicit assurances to the Foreign Office that Germany has supplied no war materials to the Spanish rebels and will not supply any in the future. The Embassy also gave an assurance that German warships in Spanish waters will not do anything which might be interpreted as showing sympathy or support for the rebels. — Reuter.

STRICT NEUTRALITY

Paris: The Cabinet has decided that the Government will observe strict neutrality in Spanish affairs, not authorising any export whatever of arms or planes to Spain.

GERMAN ATTITUDE

Berlin: Contrary to rumours, active German intervention in Spain is at present regarded as highly improbable. Semi-official quarters indicate that Germany will do everything to protect her nationals in Spain, but does not wish to encourage a situation dividing Europe into rival camps of Socialist and Fascist countries. Nevertheless should more Germans be killed or German vessels fired on, the provocation might result in the German warships' retaliating. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

SITUATION OF FRANC WEAK

Devaluation Still Feared

London, Yesterday.
Fears for the French Cabinet's ability to carry out its reflationary programme without resorting to devaluation persist, causing a further fall in the gold currencies in terms of sterling, though the volume of business is fairly small. The franc is also weak compared to the dollar, making gold shipments from Paris to New York profitable. The British control has refrained from intervening.

The Paris correspondent of The Times estimates that the Government in two months has added 11,000,000,000 francs to the deficit in the 1936 budget "by obstinately clinging to the gold standard, the Government virtually giving themselves only a few months within which to succeed. So long as the present franc parity is maintained the policy must succeed before Christmas if it succeeds at all."

Despite the very uncertain financial outlook the flight of French capital has not yet assumed dangerous dimensions, the weakness being attributed principally to nervousness at international complications arising from the Spanish revolt. — Reuter.

POLAND AND FRANCE

High Military Officers To Confer

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.
Considerable prominence is given in the press this morning to an official announcement that the Chief of the French General Staff, General Gamelin, will travel to Warsaw on August 12 to confer with the Inspector-General of the Polish Army, General Rydz-Smigly, whose status was recently officially established as that of the "second-highest person in Poland."

In an article headed "Co-operation Between the French and Polish General Staffs," the Petit Parisien states that the Generals will discuss military questions jointly affecting France and Poland. — Trans-Ocean Service.
